AFFAIRS IN FRANCE.

Details of the Fall of Sebastopol—Position and Prospects of Russia and the Allies.

[illegible]

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

PARIS, Thursday, Sept. 20, 1855.

The fall of Sebastopol has not produced the effect that was expected. It is the most singular feature of a singular succession of events, that the catastrophe, so far from leading to the denouement, only popular to new complications, doubts and suspicions. The people, who have learned that the resources of Russia are not to be annihilated at a blow, and the gentlemen of the Bourse, who, though they often set the tone of political opinion, so often assume it ready set, have not found, in the capture of the Karabelnaia, that guarantee for peace, or that symptom of Russian exhaustion, that the event was expected to furnish. The thirty daily columns of declamatory and triumphant eloquence which are supplied by the morning journals, seem to fall without effect upon the public mind, and the absence of further news would appear to indicate that the conquest has thus far been sterile and unproductive.

THE RUSSIAN VIEW.

It is undeniable that the articles of the Nord, and of the Czar, upon the capture of Sebastopol, though they were only published in the French papers to serve as a theme for ridicule, have produced a powerful effect. They show the probable policy and tactics of the Russians. They prove that the retreat to the northern side of Sebastopol had been for many weeks in preparation. They indicate that the new position in which the Russians are placed is not an unexpected one, and that they have suffered neither surprise nor disappointment. Such preparations had been made to counteract and limit the effects of a surrender of the south side, that its bearing and significance are in a great degree attenuated. KRASSLENOW asserts, over his own signature, that the Turks have lost 100,000 men, the French 40,000, and the English 20,000; that Russia will fight till she is exhausted; that her credit, even in the countries with which she is at war, remains undisturbed; that her commerce, both foreign and domestic, increases in defiance of the blockade; that she has discovered the means of assuming the offensive towards the nation that was the first to declare war. She waits calmly, and resignedly still propositions of peace be made that she can accept without belying her history or dishonoring her future. The frontiers may be attacked, but her heart is still sound.

PROJECTS AND PLANS OF RUSSIA.

As for the plans for the further resistance to be offered to the Allies, they would seem to involve the determined defence of the Crimea. The Russian argument is, that their position is improved by the retreat from the Karabelnaia. Among as the defence of Malakoff, of the Redan and of the other fortifications, resulted in causing a greater daily loss to the enemy than to themselves it was policy to prolong the defence; but the moment the besiegers obtained a foot hold within the walls, and the ratio of mortality was reversed, maintenance no longer involved the support of a principle, and became a profitless dispute for a heap of ruins. So the Russian General, applying the match to his long expectant mines, and leaving naught but fire and explosion in his path, withdrew with his troops, a large portion of his material, and with his wounded, across the bridge of boats. This skilful and most successful manœuvre has won the admiration even of his enemies.

The Russian argument contends that their forces in the Crimea were awkwardly seperated by the tongue of water facing the port of Sebastopol. To the north lay the forts with their garrisons; and, stretching to the east, LIPRANDI's strongly intrenched army of relief, upon the heights overlooking the Tchernaia. All this formed one uninterrupted line of defence. But across the bay, to the south, lay the city of Sebastopol with its 30,000 troops. These were isolated by the port, and being hemmed in on three sides by an irregular circle of fire, had no possible means of retreat but the boat bridge connecting the two banks. For many months the game lay to their advantage, and they gave back better than they got. When the tide turned they abandoned positions they no longer had a motive for keeping. Their army is now one, and reaches across Crimea. The Allies are confined to the south, upon the elevations of Balaklava and Sebastopol. They cannot attack, and can hardly annoy the enemy without undertaking a pitched battle under circumstances of position in the highest degree unfavorable. Then the Russians claimed to have 200,000 men in the Crimea, besides 10,000 at Perekop. They make no mentions of short rations or of impeded caravans, and it is probable that no serious difficulties of commissariat exist. They do not ascribe any real importance to the amount of goods that the retreating army may have left behind them.

POSITION AND PROSPECTS OF THE ALLIES.

The position and prospects of the Allies, as presented by the journals of the two countries, are, on the contrary, in the highest degree encouraging and productive. They are animated by victory, and already rejoiced by plentiful spoils; they will assault the enemy from the south and route them; they will send an expedition, by sea, some twenty miles to the north, which, descending from that direction upon the enemy, again will press them harder than ever; they will go at them behind, on the flank, around, between, above and below, and route them worse than before. Then they have destroyed, or rather compelled the Russians to destroy, the fleet that worried the Euxine. Then the Russians have no provisions, or if they have, it will now be easy to intercept the supplies; and then the Prince Napoleon, Constantine, which has a great reputation, and which forms the nucleus of the "new Sebastopol," is a past, futile construction, "as large as one of the forts around Paris," in the deprecating language of the Moniteur. And then the Allies are fighting for a principle, while the Russians are contending for the most reprehensible of all causes—the defence of their country.

THE PARIS PRESS AND BOURSE.

These various arguments of the parties to the struggle have been fully developed in the newspapers of Paris—those of the Russians being, as I have said, invariably stifled in derisive laughter. The effect, nevertheless, is not what a sympathizer could wish. The public is dissatisfied and unconvinced; the Bourse dubious, wary and uncertain. The Threes are this day lower than on the morning of the grand victory. It is certainly believed that the biggest half of the war is done, but it is just possible that the Crimea may be like "all Gaul, quartered into three halves," in which case the job is but just begun. Moniteur has made several efforts to correct this attitude of the public, without effect; and the Constitutionnel takes occasion to rebuke the City for its desire for further news. "What," it exclaims, "cannot you live three days upon the most brilliant feat of arms of modern times? Must we precipitate the course of events simply to feed with fresh intelligence the feverish impatience of public curiosity?" On Monday, a stockbroker set other stockbrokers to circulate the delightful information that General LIPRANDI had surrendered his sword. The result proves where the public anxiety lies: for the story provoked an immediate rise, and its non-confirmation as immediate a fall.

LOSSES.

The acknowledged loss of the Allies in their six assaults, amounts to about 10,000: 2,000 English, 4,500 French, wounded, and 2,000 killed. To this, every reader will add the amount which his experience teaches him will suit the case. During the three days bombardment, the Russian loss may be put at 1,000 a day; but the assault was naturally attended with loss principally to the Allies. Prisoners were taken on both sides; 700 by the Allies, 200 by the Russians. It is singular that PELISSIER, who has found time to count the cannon balls left behind by the enemy, and who gives their number as 50,000, has not yet been able to count his dead. He said indeed, on one occasion, that his dead were one-third as numerous as his wounded. Doubtless he will soon add to the precision of this statement, by saying that his wounded are three times as numerous as his dead. Such carelessness of the natural anxiety of the public is in the highest degree blameworthy.

The declaration, in the Moniteur, that the great fort of the North, which is now GORTSCHAKOFF's headquarters, is an inadequate construction, is an ostentatious falsehood, and can be called by no other name. All military authorities have represented it for months as a most formidable work. The organ itself, not long ago, published a letter from an officer to that effect. The Moniteur desired to tranquillize the Bourse, and took this means of doing it. It was, however, quite ineffectual.

You will not receive the letters from Sebastopol by this mail. The steamer that brings them, as well as the dispatches of the Generals, would appear to have gone huckleberrying, for she has not been heard of, though another of less speed, but with no mail, has reported herself at Marseilles. The Constantinople telegraph, now complete, is very inefficient, or it would tell us whether the aviso in question had ever entered the Bosphorus.

THE AMERICAN MINISTER AND THE TE DEUM.

You will be surprised to learn that Mr. MASON, American Minister at Paris, the representative of a neutral power, attended in official costume the Te Deum at Notre Dame, in thanksgiving for the fall of Sebastopol. That the Ambassador Plenipotentiary of the United States should so misunderstand his duties, passes belief. The French Government, with a delicacy which deserves acknowledgement, did not mention, in the list of invited guests published the day before in the Moniteur, the Diplomatic Corps leaving it to each member's sense of his position to decide whether he would be present or stay away. Not an American in Paris supposed his Ambassador would so interpret his mission, as to join with the Emperor, Lord COWLEY, the Turkish and Sardinian Ambassadors, in such a ceremony of mingled thanksgiving and crow. Why did not Mr. MASON represent, in his person, the neutrality of his Government, instead of leading the ignorant and uninitiated to suppose that our neutrality is unsound? The Danish Minister was not present, as he represents a neutral power; nor was the Swedish Minister, for a similar motive; nor the Belgian, nor the Bavarian, nor the Saxon, nor many others, and all for exactly the same reason, and one which ought to have governed the conduct of Mr. MASON. It is true that the Austrian and Prussian envoys were present, but they communicated telegraphically with their Governments. Besides, their position is so delicate that such a course was almost dictated by prudence and policy. But for Mr. MASON's course there is no excuse. He was not expected at the Cathedral, and perhaps it is to this circumstance of agreeable disappointment that is to be attributed the conspicuous mention of our Legation's presence in the Moniteur of the next morning. In the list of diplomats present occur the words, "M. l'Ambassadeur des Etats Unis d'Amerique," and further on the rather repetitious phrase, "MM. les Representans des Etats Unis d'Amerique," meaning the Secretary and the Attachés. I have never seen before the personnel of an Embassy mentioned apart from the principal. The Moniteur thought proper to dwell upon the unhoped for compliment. Mr. MASON was somewhat alarmed at the reiteration. Whether he took any steps in reference to it, I cannot say. At any rate, two days afterwards, a note was published in the organ to the effect that the repetition was unintentional. The editor adroitly managed to reassert the fact of Mr. MASON's presence with his Embassy. In justice to these gentlemen, I must say that they were strongly opposed to attending the ceremony, and that they only yielded to the positive commands of their superior. As the Allies are constantly saying of the Russian artillerymen, it was with great difficulty that they were got up to the work.

If the Russian Envoy at Washington asks for explanations, the Government will find it difficult to give them. The explanation offered here by Americans to each other, concerning, as it does, Mr. MASON in a point entirely unconnected with politics, I do not think proper to mention. But I may say, en passant, that the health of the Ambassador is such that he is unable to continue his daily visits to the Legation—about five minutes' walk from his house—and that for this reason the two have been made into one.

A curious incident in the Te Deum was this: The Archbishop, in his address to the Emperor, devoted a paragraph to the hopes entertained by the latter of soon having a young NAPOLEON or a little EUGENIE, though he did not use those words. The Constitutionnel of the next morning gave the sentence, while the Moniteur suppressed it. This was singular enough to excite infinite comment. It looked very much as though the hopes in question had suddenly withdrawn, but it very soon appeared evident that the organ which will be called upon ere long to announce officially the Empress' situation, could not with propriety publish previously the Archbishop's indirect reference to that circumstance.

THE ILLUMINATIONS.

I mentioned hastily, in my last, that the town others of the villages surrounding Paris, called upon the inhabitants to illuminate their windows last Thursday evening, under penalty of a fine. The following is what occurred in the village of which I myself am an unworthy citizen. An individual with a drum paraded the streets at 10 in the morning, and taking up his first position in the Rue de l'Eglise, commenced beating to arms. After having sufficiently excited upon himself the popular attention, he made the announcement in question. Upon being asked privately how much the fine would be, he said he thought it was seven francs and a half. When I say that the mansion over which I exercise the temporary control of a tenant has fourteen windows, you will appreciate the merit of this distinctness. Darkness was visible then if never before. About 9 o'clock, a crowd of little boys assembled and sang the old Republican refrain, Ber Compagnat, at the gate, but without producing the desired effects. I have not yet heard from the Mayor, in response to the fine, and in fact do not expect it. Of course I should resist and make it a national question.

The illumination in Paris was the most brilliant that has been witnessed under Louis NAPOLEON. A heavy shower about 8½ o'clock, however, materially dampened its ardor. The proprietor of the American Lunch, a Frenchman, displayed, as usual, his Stars and Stripes; but upon its being represented to him that he was taking a very reprehensible liberty, and that he might have trouble with the Commissary of Police, if not with the Minister of Foreign Affairs,(!) he hastened to withdraw the compromising bunting. Of course we could not permit our neutral banner to be making merry over the fall of Sebastopol, in front of a brandy peach shop. The poor man said he merely put it up as an ornament, and had no intention of committing an intentional discourtesy.

The Parisians continue to consider the victory as exclusively theirs, and they look upon the assistance rendered by the English as rather more apparent than real. No one could fail to notice in the message sent by the Emperor to the English army, that while he complimented them for their "constant bravery and fortitude," he said not a word of their share in the success. It is also noticed that LOUIS NAPOLEON assumes, in thus sending imperial congratulations, a marked position of superiority. The English were sent to aid him, and he recognizes their meritorious conduct. It is he that dispenses approbation. He is the Chief of the Allies. The English are accessories, tributaries. They have been praised for their indisputable bravery, but no mention is made of services rendered.

One of the cantatas sung at the gratuitous performances, last week, concluded with these words, referring to this and the last war:

"It is still the same France,
Still the same Emperor!"

The author of these lines is doubtless a brother to the emigrant in America, who believes that ANDREW JACKSON is yet President of the United States.

THE STATISTICAL CONGRESS.

I should not speak of the Statistical Congress, which has closed its doors after a puerile week's work, but for one circumstance. It was speedily found that there was to be no liberty of discussion, and that all attempts to claim for statistics and for statisticians the necessary and inherent privilege of entering upon the field of political economy would be frowned down by the President, who was none other than LOUIS NAPOLEON's Minister of Public Works. Moreover, it appeared that each day's proceedings were, to use the only adequate expression, cut and dried by said Minister's Secretary. Mr. GEORGE SUMNER, of Boston, one of the Americans admitted to the Congress, rose and protested against such unworthy treatment. "Why," said he—I quote his very words—"We are no better than one of the old Parliaments of Paris, convoked by the King to register and give a forced assent to royal ordinances already passed." He said more in the same vein of correct and, perhaps, indignant remonstrance. He was afterwards thanked and congratulated by many of the delegates for his plucky little speech. Mr. KENNEDY, of Washington, drew up a paper on the organization of the statistical bureau. It was translated and read aloud, and seemed to be thought interesting. Mr. HODGSON made some remarks that were well received. This is all, I believe. The Congress has done no other good than to afford its members an opportunity of meeting and conferring informally. It has passed no measures that can possibly lead to useful results.

The Government made the dread avowal this morning in two contrite columns of the Moniteur: The harvest is totally insufficient! The country needs eighty-two millions hectolitres, and has produced this year but seventy-five millions. The deficit is seven millions, and this, converted into English, means twenty million bushels! Thus, after the Te Deum, comes the ne Profundis—last week a Thanksgiving, and to-day a Mea Culpa. DICK TINTO.

THE FALL OF SEBASTOPOL.

THE VERY LATEST ABOUT THE WAR!

GEN. SIMPSON'S OFFICIAL DISPATCH.

DETAILS OF THE GRAND ASSAULT, &c.

The following is the dispatch of Gen. SIMPSON brought to England by Col. CURZON:

BEFORE SEBASTOPOL, Sunday, Sept. 9, 1855.

I had the honor to apprise your Lordship, in my dispatch of the 6th inst., that the engineers and artillery officers of the Allied armies had laid before General PELISSIER and myself a report, recommending that the assault should be made on the 8th inst., after a heavy fire has been kept up for two days. This arrangement was agreed to, and I have to congratulate your Lordship on the glorious result of the attack of yesterday, which has ended in the possession of the town, dockyards, and public buildings, and the destruction of the last ships of the Russian fleet in the Black Sea. Three steamers alone remain; and the capture or sinking of these must speedily follow. It was arranged that, at 13 o'clock in the day, the French columns of attack were to leave their trenches, and take possession of the Malakoff and adjacent works. After their success had been assured, and they were fairly established, the Redan was to be assaulted by the English. The Bastion Central, and Quarantine Forts on the left, were simultaneously to be attacked by the French.

At the hour appointed our Allies quitted their trenches, entered and carried the apparently impregnable defences of the Malakoff, with that impetuous valor which characterizes the French attack, and, having once obtained possession, they were never dislodged. The tricolor planted on the parapet was the signal for the British troops to advance. The arrangements for the attack I entrusted to Lieut. Gen. Sir WM. COPRINGTON, who carried out the details in concert with Lieut. General MARKHAM. I determined that the 2d and Light Divisions should have the honor of the assault, from the circumstance of their having defended the batteries and approaches against the Redan for so many months, and from the intimate knowledge they possessed of the ground.

The fire of our artillery having made as much of a breach as possible in the salient of the Redan, I decided that the columns of assault should be directed against that part, as being less exposed to the heavy fire by which this work is protected.

It was arranged between Sir WILLIAM COPRINGTON and Lieut. Gen. MARKHAM that the assaulting column of 1,000 men should be formed by equal numbers of these two divisions; the Light Division to lead, and that of the Second to follow. They left the trenches at the preconcerted signal, and moved across the ground, preceded by a covering party of 200 men, and a ladder party of 250. On arriving at the crest of the ditch, the ladders were placed, and the men immediately stormed the parapet of the Redan, and penetrated into the salient angle. A most determined and bloody combat was here maintained for nearly an hour, and although supported to the utmost, and though the greatest bravery was displayed, it was found impossible to maintain the position.

Your lordship will perceive by the long and sad list of the casualties, with what gallantry and self-devotion the officers so nobly placed themselves at the head of their men during this sanguinary conflict.

I feel myself unable to express, in adequate terms, the sense I entertain of the conduct and gallantry exhibited by the troops, though their devotion was not rewarded by a success which they so well merited. To no one are my thanks more justly due than to Col. WINDHAM, who gallantly headed his column of attack, and was fortunate in entering and remaining with the troops during the contest. The trenches were, subsequently to this attack, so crowded with troops that I was unable to organize a second assault, which I intended, in unity with the Highlanders, under Lieut. General CODRINGTON, who had thrown forward the reserve to be supported by the third division, under Major General Sir WILLIAM ERSKINE. I therefore sent for these officers, and arranged with them to renew the attack the following morning. The Highland Brigade occupied the advanced trenches during the night. About 11 o'clock the enemy commenced exploding their magazines; and Sir COLIN CAMPBELL, having ordered a small party to advance cautiously to examine the Redan, found the works abandoned. He did not, however, deem it necessary to occupy it until daylight. The evacuation of the town by the enemy was made manifest during the night, and free egress was given to our cavalry, accompanied by large adventurers, under the cover of which the enemy commenced an withdrawing their troops to the north side by means of the raft bridge recently constructed, and which they afterwards disconnected and conveyed to the other side. Their rear-guards were all sunk during the night. The boisterous weather rendered it altogether impossible for the Allies to fulfil their intentions of bringing the broadsides of the Allied fleets to bear upon the Quarantine Bastion. An excellent effect was produced by the submarine and well directed fire of their mortar vessels, chiefly of her Majesty's being under the direction of Captain WILCOX, of the Jura, and Captain DUNCAN, of the Royal Marine Artillery.

This constitutes the details on the affair of the 8th. The remainder of the dispatch consists of acknowledgements of a general character of the services rendered by the Army and Navy, and of the army especially, since it has been under General SIMPSON's command. A particular compliment is paid to General Sir HARRY JONES, for his exertions on the 5th. General SIMPSON says, "for some time past he has been suffering on a bed of sickness, but in the eventful hour of the assault he was not to remain absent. He was conveyed on a litter into the trenches to witness the completion of his arduous undertakings."

The General adds: "I must reserve to myself for the subject of a future dispatch to bring before your lordship the particular mention of officers of the various branches of this army whom I shall recommend to your favorable notice." Major CURZON is referred to as being able to give more minute details than the limits of a dispatch will allow. The dispatch only gives the list of officers killed and wounded.

General Pelissier's Dispatches.

These dispatches have not yet reached France.

An account from the Crimea, of the 11th, states that General BOSQUET's wound is not serious. The first detachment of the Allied troops entered the eastern part of the Karabelnaia suburb of Sebastopol on the 11th, by order of General PELISSIER; and on the following day the city having been previously inspected, was occupied but only by small bodies of troops.

DETAILS OF THE BOMBARDMENT.

Thrilling Descriptions of the Final Catastrophe.

From the London Times, Sept. 22.

We have received the following letters from our correspondents in the Crimea, which, however, only bring down the narrative of events before Sebastopol as soon as the 6th of September, the hour at which the French and English storming columns were in the very act of rushing to the assault against the city, which during three previous days had been devastated by the mortar fire brought to bear against it by the Allies:

SEBASTOPOL BEFORE ITS FATAL BOMBARDMENT.

SEPT. 5.—As dawn on the morning of the 5th of September, the French opened fire. The air was pure and light, and a gentle breeze from the southeast, which continued all day, drifted over the steppe, and blew gently into Sebastopol. The sun shone serenely through the vapors of early morning and wreaths of snowy smoke on the long lines of white houses inside these rugged defences of earth and gabionade which have so long kept our armies gazing in vain on this "unseen city." The ships lay floating on the waters of the basin, which were smooth as a mirror, and, like it, reflected them, and outside our own fleet and that of the French equally inactive, and not quite so useful to the eye, lay reposing from Kazatch to Catacomba as they were when they were painted" upon "a painted ocean." From Cathcart's hill the eye embraced a portion of the defences of the Quarantine—the French approaches up to their [illegible] across the ravine at the [illegible] over the [illegible] houses, which are [illegible] fire of our Allies, enclosed between the Flagstaff and the crenellated sea wall, and, looking over this wall, take in at a coup d'œil the civil town behind it, still presenting a most stately appearance as it rises on the hillside tier over tier full of churches, stately mansions, and public buildings of fine white or red sand stone, with gardens interspersed and trees growing in the walks. These fine structures are not exempt from "low neighborhoods" of whitewashed houses, which belong to the garrison or to the poorer inhabitants. The hill on which this part of the city stands rises from the rear of the Flagstaff Battery to the height of 300 feet or more, and, presenting a steep face to the creek from the dockyard, sweeps round to the roads, into which it descends sheer behind the southern forts. We cannot see the houses which are built upon this face of the hill, but those which are situated on the eastern face, or on the descent to Dockyard creek, are quite discernable by the naked eye. There is a poor suburb at the base, and thence the houses rise in terraces, with flights of steps and curving roads up to the brow of the hill. The bombardment is beginning to tell on these buildings. A church, decorated with many small pinnacles at the angles of the roof, has been struck by a shell, which has burst in the roof. Some of the best mansions are split open, or gape from their cracked walls on the day; others are perforated right through with shot-holes, through which the light is visible—windows, doors, pillars, and columns are broken or destroyed. In the rubbish of the suburb, next to the Flagstaff Works, there are several batteries in excellent order, which are not injured by the Allied batteries, and which have not yet fired much if at all. They are mostly fleches, and seem intended as outlying works of the second line of defences. Near the top of the hill, inside the crenellated wall, a portion of the interior line of these defences is to be seen. A battery, called the "Crow's Nest" from its elevated position, is placed near this line, and has an extensive command over the right of the French left attack, and over our sailors' batteries in the left of our left attack, to which it is rather troublesome. This contains a couple of large mortars in addition to some long-range guns, and can bear on any troops between the outer defences and the foot of the hill on which the town rises, and the ravine between our left and the French left attack. A very strong series of earthworks crown the ridge of the same hill, and the defences broken by the creek are continued towards the right by the various batteries (Barrack, Road, Garden, Black, Batty, &c.) which are connected with the Great Redan, and thence are carried to the Malakoff and its outlying works. The suburb behind these defences next the creek, and in front of our left attack, is in complete ruins, but our line of batteries is almost too far to do injury to the public buildings behind the suburb, although our old first parallel has been dismantled as being too far, and the guns moved into the second parallel, and various batteries in front of it. The line of the first parallel and the hill on which it is placed conceal from the spectator at Cathcart's Hill the cemetery which we occupy since the 18th of June, and which is improperly marked as "The Ovens," in one of the best maps of the place. They also hide the course of the Woronzoff road and the ravine in front under the proper right of the Redan. The ravine between our right and left attack is visible till it is closed up by the sweep of the hills on which the attacking batteries are placed, and by the ragged heights seamed with rifle pits, craters of bombs, zigzags, and the works of our quarries and battery. Behind the Redan are visible the long line of the dockyard and arsenal buildings, and the barracks, which have been rendered uninhabitable on the near side by our fire—the great sheers, the floating bridge across the roads to the north side, the two lines of men-of-war—the Twelve Apostles and five two-deckers, frigates and corvettes. Then, on the right, its Malakoff, Mamelon and the White Works, and Mount Sapoune peering beyond over them and the north side—the citadel, the Russian Camp, Inkermann, its batteries, and the plateau of the Baibek forming the background, which is defined still further by a strip of blue sea.

THE ALLIED TRENCHES BEFORE THE BOMBARDMENT.

From Cathcart's-hill, therefore, on the right front of the Fourth Division camp, one can gain an admirable view of certain points of the position from the sea on the left to our extreme right at Inkermann. That advantage is, however, rarely obtainable when there is any heavy firing, as the smoke generally hangs in thick clouds between the earthworks, nor can it be dispelled, unless by a brisk wind. If one of the few persons who were in the secret of the opening of the French batteries had been on Cathcart's hill on the morning of the 5th, he would have beheld then, just ere half-past 5 o'clock, the whole of this scene marked out in keen detail in the clear morning air. The men in our trenches can be seen sitting down behind the traverses, or strolling about in the rear of the parapets. Small trains of animals and files of men are passing over the ground between the trenches and the camp, and the only smoke that catches the eye arises from the kettles of the soldiery, or from a rifle in the advanced works. On the left, however, it can be seen that the French trenches are crowded with men, and that their batteries are all manned, though the men keep well out of view, and the mantlets and sacons are yet down before the muzzles of some of their guns. The men beneath the parapets swarm like bees. A few grey-coated Russians are in view repairing the works of the Flagstaff Battery, or engaged in throwing up a new work, which promises to be of considerable strength, in front of the second line of their defences.

THE SIGNAL.

Suddenly, along the earthern curtains between Nos. 7 and 8 Bastions there jets of flame spring up into the air and burst as many pillars of earth and dust, which are warmed into ruddy hues by the horizontal rays of the sun. The French have exploded three dangerous mines in the counterscarp, and to serve as a signal to their men. Instantly from the rear to the Dockyard creek there seems to run a stream of fire, and heavy, curling, rich white smoke, as though the earth had suddenly been rent in the throes of an earthquake, and was vomiting forth the material of her volcanoes. The lines of the French trenches were at once covered as though the very clouds of Heaven had settled down upon them and were whirled about in spiral jets, in fantastic, in shattering tenches, in columns and in sheets, all combined, involved together by the volcanic furnace beneath. The crash of such a tremendous fire must have been appalling, but the wind and the peculiar condition of the atmosphere did not permit the sound to produce any great effect on our camp; in the city for the same reason the noise must have been terrible and horrible.

EFFECTS OF THE FIRST TERRIFIC VOLLEY.

The iron storm tore over the Russian lines, tossing up, as if in sport, jets of earth and dust, rending sandbags and "squelching" the parapets, or bounding over among the houses and ruins in their rear. The terrible files of iron, about four miles in front, rushed across the plain, carrying death and ruin with it, swept with its heavy and irresistible wings the Russian flanks, and searched their centre to the core. A volley so startling, simultaneous, and tremendously powerful was probably never yet uttered since the cannon found its voice. The Russians seemed for a while utterly paralyzed, their batteries were not manned with strength enough to enable them to reply to such an overwhelming and crushing fire; but the Frenchmen, leaping to their guns with astounding energy, rapidity, and strength, kept on filling the vary air with the hurtling storm, and pour it in unbroken fury against their enemies.

THE BOMBARDMENT SWELLS.

More than 300 pieces of artillery of large calibre, admiralty served and well directed, played incessantly on the hostile lines. In a few moments a great veil of smoke—"a wavered rolling gun"—spread from the guns over on the left of Sebastopol; but the roar of the shot did not cease, and the cannonade now poured forth in great irregular bursts, now died away into hoarse murmurs, again swelled up into tumult, or reduced from end to end of the line like the die-fire of infantry. Stone walls went down before the guns at once; but the earthworks yawned to receive shot and shell alike. Hourly we could see and measure were the pas sage of these missiles through the embrasures and along the tops of the parapets, that the enemy had to lie close, and could scarcely show themselves to the front line of defences.

RUSSIAN FIRE.

For a few minutes, then, the French had it all their own way, and appeared to be on the point of sweeping away the place without resistance; but, after they had fired a few rounds from each of their numerous guns, the Russian artillerymen got to work and began to return our allies' fire. They made good practice, but fired slowly and with precision, as if they could not afford to throw away an ounce of powder. The French were stimulated rather than impeded by such a reply to their astonishing volleys, and their shot flew with increased rapidity along the line of the defences, and bounded in among the houses of the town.

WANT OF UNANIMITY BETWEEN THE FRENCH AND ENGLISH CANNONADING.

But what were we doing all this time? What was our admirable Naval Brigade and our gallant siege train doing? They were just working their guns as usual, and had received no orders to open general fire. Our batteries, therefore, rendered little assistance to the French, but they maintained their usual destructive and solid "hammering" on the face of the Redan and of the Malakoff, and aided our invaluable Allies by keeping up a regular shell practice on the batteries from the Creek to the Redan. Now two or three mortars from GORDON's, then two or three mortars from CHAPMAN's, hurled 10 and 13-inch shell behind the enemy's works, and connected the discharges by rounds from long 32's or 68's. It was not known why this evident want of unanimity existed, and why we did not open fire at the same time with the French. General PELISSIER was over at our headquarters, and had an interview with General SIMPSON yesterday, and it is not unlikely that the French commander, with his characteristic impetuosity, resolved on opening fire, finding that we were not quite prepared to do so with effect, and relying on his own numerous and heavy ordnance and abundance of ammunition. I am by no means prepared to say we were not ready to open on the day agreed upon, nor do I insinuate that there was the smallest want of unanimity between the Generals, but it is a fact that we had not all the guns and ammunition required for opening a three day's fire of intensity, and that with plenty of a certain sort of material and missiles, there was not the requisite quantity of those of a different, but useful description. Our Allies must appreciate the readiness with which we have on several occasions lent them guns, shot and shell, and are too generous, while remembering such services, to find fault with us if we had not accumulated such masses of stores as they had collected. After all, it may turn out that for military reasons the Generals resolved to let the French open first, and that their cannonade was a matter of arrangement. Although there are some complaints of deficiency in the engineering department, I have never heard it said that our artillery, as long as they had powder, shot and guns, were not ready to meet any enemy. It unfortunately happened at this juncture that General JONES, who has always displayed great energy in directing the siege works, is unwell and cannot go out, owing to a severe attack of rheumatism, which almost cripples him.

REDAN AND MALAKOFF SILENCED.

But all this is nothing to do with the siege, and meantime our Allies are pounding away with exceeding warmth at everything within range of them. Our Quarry Battery, armed with two mortars and eight cohorns, just 400 yards below the Redan, plies the inhabs in the rear of the Malakoff vigorously, and keeps the top of the Redan clear. Redan and Malakoff are alike silent, ragged and torn. At most the Redan fires three guns, and the adjoining batteries are equally parsimonious. The parapets are all pitted with shot and shell, and the sides of the embrasures are greatly injured, so that the gabions are sticking out, and are tumbling down in all directions. There is no more of that fine polishing and of that cabinetmaker's work which the Russians bestowed on their batteries; our constant fire by night, our riflemen, and incessant shelling have prevented their assiduous anxiety as to external appearances being gratified.

A PAUSE IN THE TEMPEST.

After two hours and a half of furious fire, the artillerymen of our Allies suddenly ceased, in order to let their guns cool and to rest themselves. The Russians crept out to repair the damages to their works, and shook sandbags full of earth from the parquette over the outside of their parapets. Their gunners also took advantage of this sudden cessation to open on our allies' batteries in the left attack, and caused us some little annoyance from the "crow's nest."

RECOMMENCE FIRE—AGITATION AMONG THE RUSSIANS.

At 10 o'clock, however, having previously exploded some fougasses, as before, the French recopened a fire, if possible, more rapid and tremendous than their first, and continued to keep it up with the utmost vigor till 12 o'clock at noon, by which time the Russians had only a few guns in the Flagstaff road and Garden Batteries in a position to reply. We could see them in great agitation sending men and carts to and fro across the bridge, and at 2 o'clock a powerful column of infantry crossed over to resist our assault, while a movement towards Inkermann was made by the army of the Belbek. Soon after our fire began, and early as 6 o'clock, the working parties which go over on the north side every morning seemed to be recalled, and were marched back again across the bridge to the south. no doubt to be in readiness for our expected assault. From 12 to 5 o'clock P. M. the firing was slack; the French then resumed their cannonade with the same astounding vigor as at dawn and at 10 o'clock, and never ceased their volleys of shot and shell against the place till 7½, when darkness set in, and all the mortars and heavy guns, English as well as French, opened with shell against the whole line of defences.

NIGHT! A GRAND AND AWFUL SCENE—DESTRUCTION OF RUSSIAN VESSELS.

A description of this scene is now impossible. There was not one instant in which the shells did not whistle through the air—not a moment in which the sky was not seamed by their fiery curves or illuminated by their explosion. Our practice was beyond all praise. Every shell burst as it ought, and the lines of the Russian earthworks, of the Redan, Malakoff, and of all their batteries were rendered plainly visible by the constant light of the bursting shells. The Russians scarcely attempted a reply. At 5 o'clock it was observed that a frigate in the second line near the north side was smoking, and as it grew darker flames were seen to issue from her sides. Men and officers rushed to the front in the greatest delight and excitement, and as night came on, the whole vessel broke out into one grand blaze from stem to stern. The delight of the crowd on Cathcart's Hill was intense. "Well, this is a sight!—to see one of these confounded ships toasted at last!" These and many different and stronger expressions were audible on all sides; but there were some who thought the Russians had set the ship on fire, or that inconsiderate and malcontents were at work, and one gentleman even went so far as to say he "thought it merely a signal—maybe to mask their navalry from Eupatoria." It is not precisely known how the thing was done. Some say it was done by the French—others by ourselves; and bombs, red-hot shot, and rockets have been variously named as the agency by which the fire was accomplished. In spite of the efforts of the Russians, the flames spread and soon issued from the ports and quarter-gallery. At 9 o'clock the light was so great that the houses of the city and the forts on the other side could be discerned without difficulty. The masts stood long, and towered aloft like great pillars of fire; but one after the other they yielded; the decks fell in about ten o'clock, and at midnight the frigate was burnt to the water's edge.

Cotton Market—Money Affairs.

Per Pacific.) LIVERPOOL, Friday, Sept. 21, 1855.

COTTON MARKET.—The favorable accounts of the growing crop of Cotton, and the gloomy state of the Money market, have combined to produce a very dull market, and to cause a decline in prices in the week of ⅛d. ₩ lb.

The sales for the week are 33,700 bales, of which 4,000 bales are on speculation and for export, leaving 25,650 bales to the trade.

The sales to-day are 5,000 bales. Market rather less depressed. We quote:

The Money market has been in a feverish state, owing to reports of a continued drain on the Bank, of the probability of a further advance in the rate of discount, and of the condition of the French Money market, which appears to be still more threatening than that of our own market, and where the rate of discount has been raised to 5 ₩ cent.—but the meeting of the Bank Directors passed over yesterday without any change being announced, and the week closes with a slightly better feeling. The Exchanges have risen materially, and all export of gold for profit has ceased. Any drain for export, which is now going on, can only be for army or Government purposes. Internally, there is doubtless still a considerable abstraction of coin for payment of the harvest laborers, as is usual at this season.

We have rarely known any change come in the money market of such magnitude which has produced so little change in the state of trade, nor have we ever known a period when commercial credit in this country was less likely to be much affected by dearness or tightness of the Money market. There has been little or no extension of credit since the pressure at the end of last year; and the present dearness of money, unlike any that has before occurred in our time, arises from causes over which commerce has little or no control.

The Manchester market is dull, but without despondency. At Blackburn full time is resumed. The Indian accounts are not favorable for goods.

Grain and Provision Trade.

LIVERPOOL, Friday, Sept. 21, 1855.

With a continuance of fine weather, and a dull market at London on Monday, we have to report a somewhat less active trade in WHEAT. At Tuesday's market there was a fair attendance of buyers, several having come from a distance in the expectation of purchasing at a reduction similar to that at Mark-Lane—viz., 3s. per quarter. To this holders were unwilling to submit, and the sales made at the close were [illegible] at nearly last Friday's rates, inferior descriptions [illegible]

BEEF.—The delay in publishing the usual Government contracts, led to the belief that they had sufficient for their requirements; but it has at last appeared, though the quantity is small: viz., 4,000 tierces, and 3,500 barrels—this has imparted more firmness to the trade, prices, however, are unaltered.

PORK.—In consequence of the Government contract (for 22,000 tierces, and 22,000 barrels,) holders have advanced their prices, but buyers will purchase only when they [illegible] require.

BACON.—Has sold at further advanced rates, and the stock is light.

LARD.—Is in improved demand. Sales amount to nearly 300 tons, at 58s. to 61s.

TALLOW.—Is less active, and prices show a downward tendency.

RESIN.—In good demand. Fully 10,000 bbls. have been sold, on the spot and to arrive, at 4s. 3d. to 4s. 7d.

BARK.—No inquiry.

THE BROOKLYN BOARD OF EDUCATION.

All About a Kiss.

FUSS AND FEATHERS.

Jurisdiction of the Board in Such Matters.

How to Keep them Out of the Press.

The Board held its usual monthly meeting last evening. The Vice-President, E. W. DUNHAM, Esq., in the Chair, and a quorum of the members present.

EVENING COLORED SCHOOLS.

A communication was received from the Principal of Colored School No. 1, asking for the establishment of Evening Schools, and it was referred to the Committee with power. Expense not to exceed $300.

The disbursements for the month of September were reported at $7,760 22, and the balance in the Treasury $120,646 42.

The Committee on Evening Schools, recently opened, reported satisfactory progress.

"If a body kiss a body,
Need a body tell?"

An interesting debate than arose upon a report of a Special Committee in this wise:

At the preceding meeting of the Board a communication was received from a female teacher, preferring certain charges against one of the Principals of the Public Schools. The communication was not then read, and no particulars transpired, the subject being treated with extreme delicacy and referred to a Committee of five, as a Jury of Matrons, for investigation. This Committee now briefly reported that they had carefully examined the subject, devoting three days to it, and examining a large number of witnesses. The report was couched in becoming obscurity, in which all the facts, as well as the lady's name, remained involved. As the result they found that the offence of the accused was not very heinous, but his conduct, if not very improper, was very objectionable and reprehensible.

W. H. HARRIS, Esq., called for the reading of the communication of the lady; he did not understand why it should be suppressed.

The Committee had found that the accused was not guilty of any moral offence, and yet a report would go abroad very injurious to his character. In justice to him he required the papers to be read. What was the crime of which he was accused? Was it of kissing a lady, or was that any crime? [Laughter.]

JOHN GREENWOOD, Esq., was surprised to hear any gentleman friendly to either party call for the reading. The Committee considered they had made a very forbearing report, and had recommended the best course; but he would not oppose the reading if the Board desired it.

A gallant member hoped the paper would not be read in public, where four of five reporters were present to spread it all over the world, as a lady was concerned. It was accessible to every member of the Board who desired to read it.

H. R. PIERSON, Esq., hoped the paper would not be read. He lived in the gentleman's district, and believed, from what he had heard, it was all fuss and feathers.

Several members urged the public reading and statement of the matter at large.

H. HATHWAY, Esq., was quite astounded when he heard the charge made against this gentleman, and he felt quite excited about it, (as his manner and tone indicated,) and he wished to have all the truth. Was the lady insulted? No; on the contrary, [laughter,] it was because she was unsuccessful in obtaining a situation, and he was bold enough to tell her she was incompetent.

If there was nothing immoral intended, how could they say it was "objectionable" or "reprehensible?" He hoped the matter would be sifted. The accused was a gentleman of high respectability, and 50 or 60 years of age; and because he could not fulfil all her wishes [laughter,] and extend to her all she wished [more laughter,] in obtaining a situation, the charge had been made. He called for the reading.

THOMAS FIELD, Esq., thought they had nothing to do with it. He understood it took place in her own private house, and if the gentleman was mistaken in his opinion of her disposition—a mistake which might occur to any of them, [laughter,]—he ought not to be tried by the Board of Education.

JOHN GREENWOOD, Esq., rose to a point of order. The gentleman was making outside statements which were not true. Part of it occurred in the school-room.

A member observed it must have been a "long and lingering" kiss.

Another gentleman had heard that one act was lifting up her collar and observing that many ladies had fine collars and dirty skins.

Mr. GREENWOOD insisted on his point of order, and The CHAIR decided all such statements out of order.

Mr. FIELD moved to lay it on the table.

W. H. HARRIS explained his vote; he intended to call it up again, but voted aye. Lost.

A motion to have the paper read was also lost.

Ex-Mayor COPELAND was about to explain everything, and was describing how the lady's husband discovered her agitation—how she declared it was nothing—or not much—and had been induced to make the complaint, which she now regretted—when he was interrupted, and all these delicate disclosures objected to, as before.

Mr. FIELD renewed his motion, and the whole was laid on the table.

The Board shortly afterwards adjourned.

The October Term of the Hudson County Courts commenced on Tuesday morning. Judge VREDENBURGH presiding, assisted by Judges GRIFFITHS and BROWNING. Judge VREDENBURGH delivered a lengthy charge to the Grand Jury.

The following persons compose the Grand Jury: ISAAC S. MILLER, foreman; Edward Coles, P. C. Dummer, S. R. Wakeman, S. F. Woolsey, J. A. Van Buskirk, A. R. Easton, Benj. Mills, D. Van Winkle, Nich. S. Vreeland, J. H. Brooks, Wm. C. Vreeland, J. C. Akerman, Ulysses Savage, J. Sturges, Jr., J. Williams, Thos. McDonald, S. R. Jeralemon, Josiah Cosly, D. Tuttle, E. C. Fisher, W. W. Shippen, Harry Lefman and Wm. R. Brayton.

Later from Texas.

We find little of interest in the way of news. Indian depredations have been less frequent. The San Antonio Texan states that a party of Indians who had been stealing horses in Medina County, were overtaken and one of their number killed. The Goliad True American has the following paragraph:

"The Indian hunters have returned without effecting anything, being absent only about ten days. One of the Company reports having met the Atascosa Company, headed by Capt. PETER TUMLINSON, who had a short time before a fight with eight Indians, killing five of them and recapturing the horses taken from the Old Town, and the neighborhood a few miles above this place, on the river. The Company were trailing the Indians down the San Antonio River, when they met them returning on the same trail, with the horses, and approached quite near before the Indians discovered them. So soon as they discovered their chance for escape was hopeless, the Indians cried out, 'Lipans, Lipans—don't kill Lipans!' Three only escaped."

General Agricultural Information—The Grain Market and Crop Prospects.

NEW-YORK DAILY TIMES OFFICE, Thursday, Oct. 4, 1855.

There has been no great variation in the prices of Flour and Meal since our last weekly summary, but the near approach of the close of navigation gives a special importance to every day's transactions in the grain market, and especially to the intelligence brought by each foreign arrival. It is now conceded by all parties, we believe, that there is in this country a large surplus of Wheat over what will be required for domestic consumption, particularly so when the immense yield of Corn, Potatoes, and other products that help to make up the supply of food for the masses, is taken into the account.

The chief attention is now directed to the probable foreign demand and to a solution of the question whether there is a deficiency of breadstuffs in Europe sufficient to exhaust the over supply here. The intelligence received towards the close of last week indicated a partial failure of the wheat crop in France, which was confirmed by the Pacific's news received yesterday. Several prominent grain and flour dealers are known to hold French orders for considerable amounts of Grain and Flour, and they are quietly making purchases to meet these orders, but either from the smallness of these orders or from the skillful management of the holders, they have not produced any sensible influence in elevating or sustaining former prices. The decline for a week past upon the different grades of Flour has averaged about 25c. ₩ barrel, with a corresponding fall in the price of Wheat. After the distribution of yesterday's foreign mails, the price of Flour became firmer, though no actual advance took place.

The unusually high freights, amounting to fully $1 per barrel on Flour shipped to Liverpool and Havre materially check purchases for export to those ports. One cause of these high rates is found in a great amount of shipping withdrawn from the ordinary channels of trade to convey troops and stores to the Eastern war. The increased expense of transportation added to the usual margin required for the profitable shipment of produce to Europe thus deprives the masses there from purchasing, and our own farmers from selling the stores of grain now on hand, so that both have in fact been injured by the war. The evil to ourselves, however, is measurably counterbalanced by the increased demand for breadstuffs produced by the closing up of the great Russian wheat exporting ports, and by the diversion of a large number of agricultural laborers to the battle-fields, and to the manufacture of munitions of war.

There are continued large arrivals of Flour and Wheat from the interior, and the supply is fully equal to the demand. The immense quantities now moving towards the seaboard must soon produce a glut in the market, unless extensive foreign orders are opened; and it is even doubted whether sufficient shipping can be obtained to convey away this surplus as fast as it is received. However, a Winter's store must be laid in during the next few weeks, and we see no present strong probability that prices of Grain will greatly decline before Spring.

An indication of the uncertainty in regard to future prices is found in the fact, that during a few days past there have been very few purchases made for future delivery. The most skillful dealers are slow to enter into any contracts looking towards either a rise or fall.

In this connection we may allude to the settlements on Saturday of previous contracts for September delivery. These were quite large, and the balances were generally in favor of purchasers, as they bought with the expectation of a greater decline than has been experienced.

A number of Flour Associations are forming in the Eastern cities, which are worthy of attention. Several private consumers club together and make up funds for a hundred or more barrels, and send an agent to the West, or more economically, send an order to a known Western miller, and procure their flour at wholesale. It is then divided among the members at first cost, adding transportation. In this way they procure a supply at $8 to $9 ₩ bbl., which would have cost $12 or $13, if purchased of retailers, after several profits have been paid. While the present arrangements for the sale of flour continue, which involve so many speculative profits between the miller and consumer, such associations may well be extended.

Rye flour is well up and now ranges at $4 50 to $7 ₩ barrel, which is near its actual value as compared with that made from wheat.

CORN.

Corn continues to come forward in large quantities, amounting to some 60,000 bushels daily, on the average. On a single day, during the week past, over 160,000 bushels arrived.

It would be rather a curious inquiry to ascertain where all this Western Mixed Corn—it is nearly all of this brand—has been kept during the past season of scarcity. As a natural consequence of this large supply, and of the prospect of a new crop of great magnitude, the price is gradually receding—yesterday's quotations being 66c.@67c. ₩ bushel. The crop is generally being gathered in good condition, and except at the extreme North is entirely beyond the reach of frost. The yield is unprecedented, taking the country together.

BUCKWHEAT, like Corn, is now generally beyond the reach of frost, and the crop has probably never before been as abundant.

POTATOES.—Complaints of injury from the rot continue to come in, but they are in nearly every case from very limited localities, and thus far we have every reason to believe that the loss from this cause is below that of any season during eight or ten years past, while the yield has not been exceeded in that time, if at any former period.

Fruits, the various root crops aside from Potatoes, together with all kinds of vegetables, are found in our markets in great profusion, and at prices barely remunerative to the producer.

NEW-YORK LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

Prepared expressly for the New-York Times by a careful and experienced Reporter.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, Oct. 3, 1855.

BEEF CATTLE.

These are chiefly sold at the WASHINGTON DROVE YARDS, 44TH-STREET, and at the NEW-YORK YARDS, Forty-fourth-street; BROWNING'S, on Sixth-street; CHAMBERLAIN'S, on Robinson-street, and O'BRIEN'S on Sixth-street. Our reports refer to these regular markets. Irregular sales are sometimes made at Bergen Hill, N. J., and from the Hudson River boats.

The Great Sales' day at the Washington Yards is on WEDNESDAY of each week. The reports from all the yards are made up for the preceding week to the evening of that day.

Beeves are sold by the estimated dead weight of the four quarters; the so-called "fifth quarter" (hide and tallow) is not reckoned in here, as it is in Boston and some other cities. When cattle are weighed alive the dead weight is reckoned at 56 lbs. on each 100 lbs. of live weight; 44 lbs. being allowed for the "fifth quarter" and offal.

The supply of Cattle received at the regular yards for the week ending to-day is 2,792, against 5,576 the preceding week, being a decrease of 2,784 at the regular yards.

The prices average to-day, as compared with last week, about 1¼c. to 1½c. higher.

At Forty-fourth-street we quote—

First quality, 10½c.@11¼c.; Extras, 12c.
Medium quality, 10c.@10½c.
Poor quality, 9½c.@9¾c.
Poorest quality, a few, at 7½c.@8c.
General selling prices, 10c.@10½c.
Average of all sales about 10½c.

In making up this average we estimate the majority of cattle to have sold at 9½c.@10½c., but more sold above 10½c. than below 9½c., so as to bring the average nearly or quite up to 10½c. We quote the average as 1¼c. above last week, (buyers say 2c.,) though putting the average of all sales at only 1½c. above. This difference is to be put down to the general poorer quality of the cattle to-day, for although the actual price ₩ lb. is 1½c. above, the amount of bones to be reckoned out of to-day's purchases will make the real advance fully 1¼c. ₩ lb. At 3 to 4 o'clock P. M. there were a number of sales made at 13c. for medium cattle.

BROWNING reports Beeves at 7½c.@10c., mostly Ohio and New-York cattle.

CHAMBERLAIN reports Beeves 7c.@10c., average say 9½c. Very little change in market since latter part of last week. Arrivals large and tendency downwards.

O'BRIEN reports Beeves 8c.@9c.

GENERAL REMARKS UPON THE BEEF MARKET.

As usual, another steady, pleasant day, yet anything but a pleasant one for butchers. Those who went with money to purchase ten cattle, were unable to pay more at to-day's prices. The great surplus of cattle last week, with the low prices, has evidently held back, so that there are probably 2,000 beeves within a short distance of New-York. These, with others that will be started in their train a fortnight, will be likely to swell the number next week to three times that of to-day, and prices must recede again, though probably not to last week's quotation, as owing to the short supply to-day, there will be a great demand. Those who can get their cattle within reach of the market during the next four or five days, will doubtless realize comparatively good prices at irregular sales. Had there not been a number of cattle over from last week, we would have literally become Grahamites during the week, as the supply to-day is not equal to half the current supply for last year at this time. We have looked over the Records of Forty-fourth-street for last year, and institute the following comparison between the numbers then and now:

Average weekly receipts	1,927
Total receipts for twelve months prior to Oct. 1, 1854	105,139
Average weekly receipts	2,020

The above tables show that the receipts for the past week at Forty-fourth-street have been less than for any week since the beginning of the present year, and but 41 more than half of the average weekly receipts for a year past.

The quality, and especially the average weight of the cattle in market to-day, is far below an average, and with the diminished receipts at the other regular yards, and the small number sold at Bergen, we are safe in saying that a less number of pounds of beef arrived in this City during the week ending to-day than in any week for about two years past.

The Beeves at Forty-fourth-street to-day may be divided as follows: One-tenth very good; one-third medium; one-half ordinary, and the rest "veal wage."

For further remarks upon quality, sales, routes of travel, expenses, &c., see the

SPECIAL NOTES OF PARTICULAR DROVES.

We give below the names of the principal owners and sellers, with the State where the cattle were last fed. Several of those put down as owners are drovers or "cattle brokers," who have purchased them from the feeder, or after their arrival at or near our City. Cattle brokers usually sell on commission, at so much per head; but they often buy out a drove, and sell them on their own account. So also the feeders or drovers frequently come into the yards and sell their own stock.

These tables and the notes following are gathered from personal inspection of each of the droves of Cattle mentioned. All the droves are not mentioned, because we do not always find the sellers or owners in the yards, even after having made several visits during the day. Occasionally droves are sold out before we reach them.

* Sold from New-York Yards, west side of Forty-fourth-street.

Yard No. 1—Common Steers, but in pretty good flesh; weighing 500 to 700 lbs., average say 650 lbs.; selling at 10c.@11c. THEN also sold 30 good Westchester County, N. Y., Cattle at full 10½c.

No. 2—Gathered in Madison County; a very mixed lot, generally of very ordinary quality, and including several cows and heifers. Weight of drove about 500 lbs.; selling at 8½c.@10½c. Came by cars from London, via Buffalo, N. Y. Central Railroad and Hudson River Boats. Owner complains of bad detention on N. Y. Central Road, by which he was prevented from arriving here in time to feed before sales commenced this morning. AYRAULT sold 24 Troy Cattle—WEIR & LESTER owners—at 10c.@11c.; weight 650 to 900 lbs.; GWYNN took 3 at $215, and GILMAN 7 at $616, both lots estimated at 11c. by seller.

No. 3—Fed by JACOB SNYDER, of Fayette County; quality ordinary, not equal to some lots from same feeder; weight 550 to 700 lbs.; selling at 9½c.@10½c.

No. 4—Gathered in Franklin County; very good quality; 650 to 800 lbs., selling at 9½c.@10c., or higher; carred at Worthington on Columbus and Cleveland road; expense ₩ car from Worthington to Erie $50, to Dunkirk $15, to New-York via Erie Railroad, $65. Mr. PHILLIPS tried an experiment of feeding corn in the car instead of hay to one car load at Dunkirk, and found that those having corn came through in much better heart than those fed on hay only. This is worthy the attention of owners of cattle. Probably it is better to give a moderate supply of corn with some hay.

No. 5—A very mixed lot, including cows and heifers, gathered in Cattaraugus County; 350 to 600 lbs.; selling at 8c.@11c. A good pair of cattle sold at $100 each.

No. 7—Same place and same quality as No. 5, only more so—300 to 1,000 lbs. selling at 8c.@11c.

No. 8—A mixed lot of cows, heifers and steers, of ordinary quality; light, 400 to 500 lbs., selling at 8c.@9c.

By same seller, 15 Dutchess County, N. Y., cattle, owned by T. GARFIELD, an uneven lot, 450 to 500 lbs.

No. 9—A medium lot, 650 to 850 lbs.; average 700; selling at 9½c.@11½c.; estimated by seller to average 10½c.

No. 12—One of the three best droves in market; 650 to 900 lbs., and averaging full 750 lbs.; sold at 10c. to 11½c.; whole lot estimated by seller to average 11c., and by some purchasers at 12c.

No. 13—Such a thin, raw-boned lot, although of large size would not be very profitable to bring to this market on ordinary days, but to-day they went off at an average of 10c., which was all they were worth. The manufacturers of bone earth should keep an eye on the destination of these cattle. They weighed 600 to 660 lbs.—two of them as high as 950 lbs.; average of lot about 650 lbs.

Nos. 14, 15, 16, and 18 were remnants of last week.

No. 19—yard 13 last week—were all sold at 11c.

BROCK & HAYNE (No. 16) made a good hit in pasturing their cattle at 15c. per day since last market day. A butcher, who last week refused to give $75 for a lot in this drove, came to-day and paid $86 for the same animals—a rise of $11 ₩ head, or full 1½c. ₩ lb. One of the owners thinks they would have made $1,000 by keeping their entire herd of 100 cattle over from last week.

No. 10—These were the best in the yards. Mr. MOUSER, of Ross County, who is not often present, was here himself to-day, and seemed quite satisfied to see his fine animals going off at 10½c.@11½c., and we guess higher than that, as they deserved to, at to-day's prices. Weight 600 to 1,300 lbs.; average of whole drove full 875 lbs. One pair sold to Jno. FINCH for $285.

No. 22—A mixed lot of generally ordinary quality; 450 to 900 lbs.; selling at 9c.@10½c.

No. 7.*—Common Cattle; 600 to 900 lbs.; average 750 lbs.; selling at 9½c.@10½c.; average about 10½c.

MILCH COWS AND CALVES.

These are sold at each of the above yards. The prices of Cows vary according to the fancy of the buyer, rather than with the real milking value. A nice animal, with a calf by her side, will bring from $65 to $80 or more. The prices the past week have been: Ordinary, $30@$40, Good $40@$50, Extras, $50@$75.

CHAMBERLAIN reports Cows and Calves $30 to $60.

O'BRIEN reports Cows and Calves, $28 to $50.

VEAL CALVES.

Veal Calves are sold by live weight, each animal being weighed alive at the time of sale. The principal places of sale are at ALLERTON'S, BROWNING'S, CHAMBERLAIN'S and O'BRIEN'S though large numbers of irregular sales are made from the Hudson River boats and elsewhere.

SHEEP AND LAMBS.

These are chiefly sold at ALLERTON'S, BROWNING'S and CHAMBERLAIN'S, at so much ₩ head for a particular lot of Sheep or Lambs, or of the two together. They are also frequently sold by live weight [illegible] ready calculation.

Receipts of the past week:

At ALLERTON'S, Sheep are reported at $2@$6, and Lambs at $1 50@$5. Supply short and demand good.

BROWNING reports Sheep and Lambs fair, but sales slow. Stock of poorer quality than last week, but not many very poor animals offered. Prices varying from $1 68 to $4 for Lambs, and $1 50 to $7 for Sheep, mostly from Ohio and New-York—a few from Delaware. About 1,000 on hand, and market dull to-day.

CHAMBERLIN reports Sheep and Lambs $2@$5. No store Sheep received. Tendency of prices downward.

There is considerable mutual recrimination among the Sheep Brokers, who accuse each other of reporting too large sales and too high prices. We could not countenance anything of this kind, and use all diligence to avoid reporting any inaccuracies. If all of them give us the opportunity afforded by some, of at all times looking into their books in which sales are recorded, we shall be quite likely to escape deception.

HORSE MARKET.

Horses are sold all over the City, but the principal sales and exchange stables are located on Twenty-fourth-street, between Second and Fourth avenues. At these stables horses are sold on commission, or are purchased by the stable-keepers and sold on their own account. Generally, however, they are sold by drovers who bring their horses here from the country, and stable them, at an expense of 65 cents per day, until sold.

The sales below are not a tithe of all sold in the City; but, being the principal sales stables, they are quoted as a general indication of the market.

DANIEL MCCAULEY, Rose Hill stables, Nos. 96 to 110 Twenty-fourth-street, has on hand 42 horses, with sales for the week of about 28—mostly stage horses, $130 to $160; a few at higher rates, including one grey mare, 6 years old, 15½ hands high, a good trotter, 3 minutes, sold for $450.

At CHAMBERLIN & Co.'s, No. 71 Twenty-fourth-street, 73 on hand, and sales during the week 15, of different kinds. We noticed a very great variety in the character of the stock in these stables—horse resemblances selling at $30 to $70, and extra roadsters, trotters, and family horses and stallions held as high as $600@$700.

BROWN & SMITH, No. 128 Twenty-fourth-street, report 26 on hand, and sales during the week of 5, chiefly small horses, at an average of $130 each, with little variation from this price.

SWINE.

These are sold at so much ₩ lb., gross or live weight. Sold from scales. Principal sales at ALLERTON'S, Forty-fourth street; and at JAMES DORMAN'S, Union Drove Yards, foot of Forty-first-street.

Receipts at ALLERTON'S, by Erie Railroad, 698; by Hudson River Railroad, 405; by Hudson River Boats, 1,960; by Harlem Railroad, 5. Total 3,101.

ALLERTON reports good Swine 6½c.@7c., for extras.

Markets—Carefully Reported for the N. Y. Daily Times

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 3—6 P. M.

COTTON—The Pacific's advices have added to the dullness and irregularity previously apparent in this branch of business. No agreement about prices can be arrived at by buyers and sellers. Buyers are not disposed to go much higher than 9c. for Middling Uplands, and proportionate figures for other grades, ₩ lb. These terms factors reject. Hence the insignificant transactions.

FLOUR AND MEAL.—State and Western brands are in rather better request for home use and export; and with no corresponding increase in the receipts, while there is less eagerness manifested by holders to realize, prices have acquired renewed firmness and buoyancy, especially for good common and medium qualities, the demand for which is the liveliest. The finer grades, however, are moderately sought after, and display less heaviness. The sales since our last have amounted to 16,400 bbls., here and to arrive soon, within our revised range:

Ordinary State	7 62½@ 7 68¾
Straight State	7 68¾@ 7 75
Favorite and Extra State	7 75 @ 8 00
Mixed Western	7 62½@ 7 75
Common to good Indiana and Michigan	7 75 @ 7 87½
Fancy Michigan	7 87½@ 8 12½
Common to Good Ohio	7 75 @ 8 00
Fancy Ohio	8 00 @ 8 12½
Extra Ohio	8 00 @ 9 75
Extra Indiana and Michigan	8 00 @10 00
Fancy Genesee	8 12½@ 8 37½
Extra Genesee	9 00 @10 50

Canadian remains unchanged. 1,450 bbls. superfine to extra realized $8@$9 ₩ bbl. Southern is in fair demand, and is firm. The sales since our last comprise 2,000 bbls. mixed to extra at $8 12½@$10 ₩ bbl. Rye Flour is quiet, yet steady at $5 40@$7 ₩ bbl. Corn Meal is also inactive and languid at $4 62½ for Jersey, and $4 87½ for Brandywine, ₩ bbl.

GRAIN—Wheat is plenty and heavy. The bulk of what is here does not suit buyers—a circumstance that contributes to the depression in the business. Good and prime parcels are the rarest and most needed. They also command, relatively, the best prices. Common and inferior descriptions are not wanted, and being abundant they are of very uncertain value. The sales since our last have reached nearly 68,000 bushels here and to arrive shortly, at $1 97½@$2 01 for Southern White; $1 70@$1 90 for inferior to choice do. Red; $2@$2 03 for fair to good Canadian White; and $1 70@$1 80 for Western Red, ₩ bushel. Rye is in good request at full rates, with sales of 9,000 bushels at $1 14@$1 18, chiefly within the range, ₩ bushel. Oats are plenty and heavy at 44c.@46c. for Western, and 48c.@44c. for State, ₩ bushel. Barley is less sought after, but is generally held at $1 30@$1 35 per bushel. We have no particular change to notice in Beans or Peas. Corn is more inquired for, partly by home dealers and partly by shippers, at higher rates. The day's transactions comprise about 47,000 bushels Western Mixed at 66c.@67c. ₩ bushel. Other kinds are rare and nominal.

FREIGHTS—This having been steamer's day, and parties having been actively employed with their correspondence, the engagements for all ports were only to a moderate extent, at about previous quotations,—the fluctuations therefrom scarcely meriting any notice. The latest charters have been: A ship from Savannah to Liverpool, cotton, at ½d.; one, 400 tons, to Australia, about $11,000; one, 687 tons, to London, £1,700; a Danish brig to Schiedam, rye, 19d.; a barque from Philadelphia to Kingston and Falmouth, Jam., 45c. ₩ bbl.; a brig, 157 tons, to Aspinwall, assorted cargo, $1,800; ship Zenobia to Antwerp, and a bark, 358 tons, for a fifteen months' voyage, on private terms.

NEW-YORK CITY.

Medical Reunion.

There was a very pleasant réunion at the New-York Hotel on Tuesday evening. By invitation of Dr. CARNOCHAN, his colleagues of the New-York Medical College, with other friends, professional and personal, assembled to meet Dr. STONE, the eminent surgeon of New-Orleans. Besides this distinguished gentleman, by a fortunate detention, Dr. GIBSON, Professor of Surgery in the Medical School at Richmond, Va., was also present, adding much to the pleasures of the evening by his urbanity and fund of anecdote. Dr. MOTT assisted in welcoming these distinguished guests, while Dr. GILMAN was, as usual, rich in wit and humor. Because the occasion was strictly private we refrain from repeating the very many good things that were said. The welcome to Dr. STONE was cordial and hearty, and no doubt was agreeable to him.

We have seldom seen Dr. MOTT appearing to enjoy himself more thoroughly. In the course of the evening he paid a very handsome tribute to the worth of Dr. GREEN, in whom he always has had implicit confidence, and whose success and triumph over all opposition he long ago prophesied.

The Councilmen.

The Board of Councilmen duly met last night, according to rule. The proceedings were of little public moment. The usual number of petitions were referred and resolutions received. Of the former was one from the artist, C. W. JARVIS, for permission to exhibit his painting of HENRY CLAY at the Crystal Palace, which was granted conditionally. A resolution offered by the President, to meet during the present month at 4 P. M., instead of 5 P. M., was laid over according to rule. A report from the Committee on the Law Department, recommending that the employment of Inspectors on public works should be discontinued, after a slight amendment by Councilman CLANCY, was adopted.

The Foreign News—The War and the State of Europe.

The Pacific's mail brings us no new fact of importance, but the details, as far as received, of the capture of Southern Sebastopol, are full of interest. Though the first announcement of this great event is fully confirmed, it is somewhat remarkable that a feeling of suspense and expectation, not unmixed with uneasiness, should pervade the public mind of England. France, on the contrary, is drunk with excitement. Delighted with her place of undivided honor amid the ruins of Sebastopol, she has given herself up to parades, illuminations, and extravagant exultations. The war—never before truly popular—has at last aroused the enthusiasm of the French. Their national vanity has been appeased, and they begin to look upon the struggle with greater interest and more general satisfaction.

From the details of the bombardment and assault on Sebastopol that have reached us, it will be seen that while the French, after [illegible] successive attempts, carried the Malakoff, the English were repulsed before the Redan, which they at one time occupied. All fought with the most determined bravery, as the long list of killed and wounded testify; but the latter found it impossible to maintain their position. Before they could reorganize for a second attack the fort was abandoned by the Russians.

The next operations of the Allies are as yet enveloped in mystery. We have no indication of Russian movements, nor any authority for supposing that Prince GORTSCHAKOFF will retreat from the Crimea without another desperate effort to retrieve his lost laurels. How long he will be able to defend the northern forts does not appear. In spite of exaggerated telegraphic messages in the London Times, and over-sanguine expectations in the flush of victory, there seems little probability of anything being done for some weeks hence. Reinforcements are crowding in on all sides, but the victors are as much in need of reorganization and rest as the vanquished.

An important item of news by this arrival is the journey of the Emperor ALEXANDER to Moscow, Nicolaieff and the Crimea. His trip to Warsaw, with all its peaceable surmises, has been abandoned, and in its stead he goes to stimulate the energy of his beaten army and revive its old enthusiasm. He has issued a proclamation in which he acknowledges his losses, but places every confidence in the bravery and endurance of Sebastopol's late defenders.

Diplomacy again lifts up her head, and Austria—anxious to shake hands with the victors—declares her willingness to offer some new solution to the pending difficulty. A hard task just now, we fancy, while war is raging over the ruins of the "Third Point." Vienna statesmen are nevertheless a tenacious race, and are not to be daunted by refusal. Winter, too, will be their ally. The fact is that Austrian affairs are growing more complicated every day. The situation of the Empire is best illustrated by her advice to the King of Naples to curb his despotic humors. The timely threat of a visit from the English squadron to Naples has alarmed the quid nunes of Vienna, and BOMBA has been ordered to dismiss his policeman, MAZZA, in order to pacify PALMERSTON. MAZZINI has published an address to the young men of Naples, calling on them to rise in revolution. Copies of the document, it is said, have been circulated widely, though with much secrecy, through Naples and Sicily.

Spain has had a Ministerial crisis about Major Domos and ladies of the Palace. ISABELLA did not like the suite selected for her by the Ministry. She refused to accept the list, and the Cabinet, bodily, resigned. On further consideration, she withdrew her refusal and her obstinate Cabinet were so mollified by the gracious act, that its members consented to resume their official duties. An admirable monarchy!

Don PEDRO, of Portugal, has taken into his youthful hands the reins of Government. The act was celebrated by popular rejoicings and the opening of the first telegraphic line in the Portuguese dominions.

The King of Holland has opened another of his intermittent Chambers, and is glad to be on friendly terms with all the great powers of the world.

Germany, as usual, sleeps on a bedstead of speculations, which, according to Punch, is "good stabling for nightmares." The Scandinavian Powers are rather pleased than otherwise with Russian Reverses. In fact, all the minor States of Europe are anxious to see their haughty Protector humbled, though, of course, none dare openly display their joy, for, after all, the Czar is still the Autocrat of all the Russias, and they are but his pigmies.

Characteristics of Russian Warfare.

After every fresh [illegible] in the Crimea, long strategical notices appear in the European papers, which, although they display a vast amount of military knowledge, do not, by any means, form a just estimate of the true character of the Russian mode of warfare.

When, for instance, the London Times attributes the sudden surrender of the south side of Sebastopol, on the part of the Russian commander, (who could have held it a week longer, notwithstanding the loss of the Malakoff Tower,) to the demoralization of the Russian army, and the strategical effect of the operations of the Allies, in both suppositions it falls into the same error. The Russian soldier, who, whether fighting or running away, is always the same stupid machine, is just as little subject to demoralization from defeat, as he is capable of feeling enthusiasm.

The cutting off the line of retreat by Eupatoria, which the Times adduces as the cause of the sudden retreat of the Russians, is as little to be feared by GORTSCHAKOFF as it is by PELISSIER—when he says he keeps a watchful eye upon the lines of the Tchernaya. The suddenness of this retreat is probably to be attributed to military causes—and KOSSUTH, too, is in error, when he considers, merely in a strategical point of view, the cause of this retreat, and the supposed new tactics of the Russians. The Russian mode of warfare is so different from that of the other European Powers, that unless its peculiar character is constantly kept in view, one necessarily arrives at false conclusions.

It is still to be remembered, with what braggadocio Russia entered the lists when she had taken possession of the Danubian Principalities. It then seemed as if she never intended to evacuate them, and as if no power on earth could force her to do so. The proclamations of the Government declared that the Russians took up arms against Infidels, and that they would rather die than lay them down imploringly. For a time this appeared to be really the case; the Russian army, notwithstanding the vicinity of the English and French at Varna, crossed the Turkish frontier, and throughout the entire Empire the population was placed under arms. This did not, however, last long; for scarcely had the Western Powers declared war against Russia in consequence of the perfidious destruction of the Turkish fleet at Sinope, than the national war-enthusiasm became extinguished, and the Muscovite mode of warfare assumed an entirely different complexion.

The Russian fleet forsook the open sea and took refuge under the shelter of their fortresses, where they lay hidden nearly all the time, and only ventured out when the enemy was away.

In the same way the land army gave up the siege of Silistria, and quickly retreated into the interior of the country with a haste by no means justified by strategy, where it remained concealed, and was only ordered to the Crimea when it was discovered that the Allies had not taken Sebastopol by a coup de main, but were proceeding to besiege it in the regular way. That the first would have succeeded had it been tried, is now beyond all doubt, just as the termination of the defence has disappointed all the expectations which were formed in the beginning, of the strength and capabilities of the Russian troops. They were beaten more than once, because they did not understand the peculiar advantage of their magnificently constructed works of defence, and still less did they understand at the proper time, and in the proper way, how to quit the defensive, and take up an offensive position.

Even in the battle of the 8th of September, the occasion presented itself, if the Russian commander had taken advantage of it, and made energetic use of all the troops at his disposal. But such sudden perceptions are beyond the reach and genius of the Russian system of war.

From a closer investigation of this system, one is led to form the following opinion concerning it: In the first place, it is the custom of the Russians to provoke and challenge the enemy, and when this is done, and the battle is accepted, they rush forward as if they intended to annihilate him with one blow; but if this plan fails, they retire with all speed to some secure position, and make any sacrifice, rather than run the risk of a decided engagement. They do not, however, yield altogether; still less do they make peace; but they irritate the enemy—use every possible exertion to resist him, and recklessly sacrifice men and prosperity, in the hope that some unforseen event may occur to weaken him, and help the aggressor to victory. It must be admitted that this is a peculiar style of conducting war, but it would be doing injustice to the Russian people and the Russian Government, not to consider it a national characteristic. In this respect, the Czar, his subjects, the State and the people, are completely united in what they do and what they leave undone. As the Russian, in general, when he has the upper hand, is haughty and overbearing, and when he finds his superior, is abject and humble; so Russian warfare challenges and surprises when a speedy victory is expected, but is tenacious, and retires where the men are obliged to yield to superior force. They do this with the determination not to yield, but with the intention of waiting for the moment of retaliation. It is the warfare of barbarians, who are crafty and malicious; and these peculiarities of the nation are not to be overlooked, when the true motives of their military tactics are sought to be understood.

To what species of military tactics, and to what kind of diplomatic negotiation, a contest with such an enemy must lead, is easily to be foreseen. In fact, in the war with Russia, the Allies have to deal with a state which never yields, and is not capable of gaining a victory by its own strength. The Allies, however, after having conquered the Crimea, will occupy the same advantageous position, for they cannot then be forced by Russia either to make peace or to continue the war.

The Central Park—The Report Completed.

Our readers will greatly rejoice to hear that the Commissioners of the Central Park have terminated their labors. Their report is complete, and is deposited to-day for public inspection in the Street Commissioner's office. They have required nearly two years to do the work, but on reviewing what they have done, it will be conceded that their time has not been idly employed. During that comparatively short period, they have carefully examined and estimated the value of upwards of 7,500 separate parcels of land taken for the Park, and of upwards of 24,000 other parcels, lying in the vicinity and benefited by its opening, making the enormous aggregate of thirty-four thousand cases.

The Commissioners, Messrs. MICHAEL ULSHOEFFER, WILLIAM KENT, LUTHER BRADISH, WARREN BRADY, and JEREMIAH TOWLE, who were appointed under the act of July 21, 1853, establishing the Park, held their first meeting on the 26th of November, 1853, and have been in constant session from that time to the present moment. They have been diligently aided in their labors by JAMES F. RUGGLES, Esq., in examining the legal title of the 7,500 lots taken, and by J. MANSFIELD DAVIES, Esq., in computing the values of the lands taken and of those assessed.

Messrs. SAGE, SERRELL, NICHOLSON, and GRAVES, each taking a division, have executed the surveys and voluminous maps, which accompany the report.

The area of the Park is 776 acres, including the public lands occupied by the State Arsenal and the Upper Reservoir with its proposed enlargement. It is two miles and a third long, from Fifty-ninth-street to One hundred and sixth-street, and about 3,000 feet broad from Fifth to Eighth avenues. It is nearly twice as large as Hyde Park in London, and its uninterrupted drive of two miles and a third will be one of the longest in any city of the world. By judicious and tasteful management of the interior, this drive may be prolonged to at least twenty miles, besides affording innumerable pleasure grounds for the recreation of the old and young.

The total amount awarded for the lands taken is $5,020,814, of which $1,675,329 has been assessed on the property adjacent. The law establishing the Park requires the City to pay the amount not assessed on the adjacent property,—by a loan at five per cent. annual interest for 45 years. The balance thus imposed on the City, consequently, is $3,345,485. But from this should be deducted for lands in the Park belonging to the City and for which was awarded $360,482, leaving $2,985,003 on which it will be necessary to pay five per cent., or $149,250 annually. The increase alone of the taxable property for at least six miles on the four sides of the Park, will speedily yield in annual taxes a sum sufficient to pay this $149,250 four-fold.

The only step now wanting to complete this long desired measure, is to obtain the approval of the Supreme Court to the report of the Commissioners, after the expiration of their sixty days' notice, and then to proceed with vigor to regulate and decorate the interior of this Park.

It is also truly gratifying to add that the total fees and expenses of the Commissioners, exclusive of the surveys, (the Counsel rendering his services in this matter, gratuitously, under the law of April 1, 1854,) will not exceed seventeen thousand dollars. This surely is no extravagant compensation for the incessant labors of five experienced men of business and their two able assistants for nearly two years, and including all incidental expenses. They have done their whole duty. Let the public and public authorities now do theirs.

Crimean Heroes.

With all our traditional prejudices in favor of English honor, and the most natural desire in the world to see the people whose language we speak, and with whom we share the glories of a common ancestry, triumphant in any contest to which our country is not a party, we cannot shut our eyes to what must be a mortifying fact with the English themselves, that the glory of the Crimean war is absorbed and monopolized by the ancient enemy of the English race. Bravery, generosity, the most prodigal expenditure of money, and the most heroic devotion to duty have, unquestionably, been exhibited by the English ever since the war commenced; but, in enumerating the heroes of the Crimea, we involuntarily, and of necessity, enumerate Gallic names. The commanders of the French army were all of them new men; the name of ST. ARNAUD was the only one with which the world was familiar, and he did not take with him an enviable reputation when he embarked for the East; but his corpse was borne back to France with the hero's wreath above it. CANROBERT, PELISSIER and BOSQUET, are now enrolled among the heroic names of their country. The only new name that the English have presented us has been that of SIMPSON, and neither Westminster Abbey nor the Peerage have gained any accessions from the Crimean campaign.

It is the fortune of war, but England never before expended so much money, and offered up the lives of so many of her brave sons, and reaped in return so small a harvest of heroes. All the great battles which her armies have hitherto fought are commemorated in the peerage by ennobled names. But there is not even a baronetage whose bloody hand was crimsoned in the Crimea.

The French Emperor has been most fortunate in his Generals, with the single exception of his unmilitary cousin and appointed heir, who had the good sense to abandon a field where he was not likely to gather any laurels, and return home. Gen. BOSQUET, to whom the capture of the Malakoff—the crowning glory of the war—is attributed, was a Republican to the last, and voted No against the Empire, and it is said he was given the command of a division at the solicitation of CANROBERT, who knew his valuable qualities. As the English forces were so much inferior, in point of numbers, to the French, it was unavoidable, perhaps, that they should appear to disadvantage by the side of their ally. If there had been any opportunity for a naval engagement, the case would, of course, have been reversed; but, as the Russians have prudently kept their ships out of harm's way,—either behind the fortifications of Cronstadt, or by sinking them in the harbor of Sebastopol,—the glory of the war has thus far been monopolized by the French. But there will be more fighting, and England may yet have an opportunity to revive the glories of Waterloo.

The Bread Question in Paris.

The remarkable experiment in political economy, which was tried last year in Paris, of compelling the bakers to sell their loaves at two prices—high to the rich and low to the poor—it seems, is not to be repeated this year, though there is a prospect of breadstuffs ruling quite as high in France this Winter as they did the last. But the abandonment of such an absurd piece of political charlatanism will necessarily lead to the adoption of some new scheme for feeding the working classes. France is always hungry; and the fact that the Government has had to provide means for feeding the people from the days of the first down to those of the last NAPOLEON, ought, we should suppose, to have led to the discovery of some efficient and reliable means of doing it. But no statesman has yet succeeded in inventing a plan. The simple method, which is found to work so admirably in this country, of letting the people alone to feed themselves, has not yet been tried, and probably will not be. The people have been educated to look to the Government, and the consequence has been an almost invariable lack of bread under every dynasty. Happily for the hungry millions of France and England, our fields have yielded enough to feed our own people, and a surplus sufficient for the pinched subjects of all the Crowns in Christendom. It is going forward as fast our ships can carry it; and more would go if so many of our noble ships had not been chartered to carry the troops of France and England to the seat of war in the East.

City Politics.

The Broadway House Whig General Committee hesitate about endorsing the Republican movement. Resolutions approving the Syracuse platform and ticket were offered, but instead of being passed, they were referred to a Select Committee.

This means one or two things,—either a disposition to oppose the fusion movement altogether, or a desire to bargain for a Republican endorsement of the Whig City and County nominations, in exchange for the adoption by the Committee of the nominations at Syracuse. The effect of it will probably be to incite the Republicans to nominate a separate City ticket of their own. If any such action should be taken, we hope that regard will be had mainly to City necessities and interests, and that political questions of all kinds will be held subordinate. If the Republicans, or anybody else, would put before the people a ticket made up of the very best men the City contains, for City officers, without regard to politics, it would command a general support.

Kansas Election.

The telegraph last night brought us news from Kansas to the 2d inst., which indicates the election of WHITEFIELD, the Pro-Slavery candidate for Congress, from the returns so far as received. Gov. SHANNON voted the Pro-Slavery ticket. There was no fighting or tumult, but this would seem to have been owing to a pretty general absence of Free-Soilers from the polls.

☞ The New-York State Temperance Convention met at Utica yesterday. The only nominations made were for Attorney-General and Judges of the Court of Appeals, which were those of the Republican Convention—with a recommendation to support for other offices men known to favor the principle of Prohibition. The proceedings were quite animated.

☞ The Gardner Know-Nothings of Massachusetts held a State Convention yesterday, and selected a ticket. Gov. GARDNER was nominated for reelection by a nearly unanimous vote, and afterwards made a speech—which was received, our telegraphic report says, "with tumultuous and long-continued applause."

☞ The Georgia Election has resulted, as we predicted, in the election of the Democratic candidate. His majority will be about 5,000. The delegation in Congress will probably consist of three Know-Nothings and five opponents.

Beef Up.

In almost all our articles of consumption we can form some idea beforehand of what will have to be paid from week to week for the family supply. Not so, however, with our meat bills. If the butchers regulated their retail prices by first cost, six dollars will purchase no more meat this week than five dollars last week. Beef went up yesterday at Forty-fourth-street full 1¼ cents per pound—buyers say more than two cents. The whole supply of Beeves at the regular markets yesterday, was only 2,792 against 5,576 last week. Next Wednesday we shall probably have another rush of cattle, and prices will go down again. These occasional fluctuations in the price of beef alone, amount to from $20,000 to $40,000. This week will be a good time to give Grahamism a practical trial.

Fox not Tucker.

It was Alderman FOX, and not Alderman TUCKER, who made the remarks to the Board of Aldermen on Monday night, in reference to the [illegible], which we inadvertently attributed to the latter.

Musical.

[illegible] It is not often that we have an opportunity of hearing an opera so admirably rendered in all respects as that offered last night, in the performance of DONIZETTI's "Linda di Chamounix." The principal artists exerted themselves and imparted more than usual dramatic effect to the charming work. The cast was as follows:

Linda	Mad. Anna de La Grange.
Pierotto	Mlle. Martini D'Ormy.
Carlo	Signor Brignoli.
Antonio	Signor Morelli.
Marquis	Signor Rovere.
Prefect	Signor Gasparoni.

It is much easier to enjoy a good performance than to note down its prominent features. There is something in Mme. LA GRANGE's Linda which cannot very well be described. From the opening cavatina to the finale of the last act we are always conscious of the supreme artist, doing everything as a matter of course, and without effort. But beyond this there is a charm and simplicity in her voice and voice which seems to surpass art, although, of course, it is but the perfection of it. When the last note has sounded, we go away dreaming of beautiful pictures with dim outlines, haunting us the more [illegible] to get away from them. The usual [illegible] and tokens of art are not there; nothing but unconscious effects. In this opera more than any other Madame LA GRANGE acts up to the spirit and sentiment of the dramatic situation. The quiet village scenes with which it opens are toned to their proper simplicity, and throughout the more exciting ones of the second act there is the fragrance of the village birthplace ever around her. To our mind the rôle of Linda is the best in which Madame LA GRANGE has yet appeared, vocally and dramatically.

Signor MORELLI performed and sang with superb effect. In the famous imprecation scene in the second act he produced a novel and exceedingly impressive effect. For a moment he abandoned the music, and in a voice quivering with passion, spoke the words of the text. A vehement burst of applause rewarded the deviation from the beaten track.

Signor BRIGNOLI was in good voice, and sang with energy, particularly in the duet "O consolarmi," and in the introduced aria of the second act. This admirable tenor improves daily. Madame D'ORMY, as Pierotto, displayed the admirable quality of her voice, but gave us occasion to regret that she had so long neglected to cultivate it. ROVERE and GASPARONI were both good—the latter appearing to be a little nervous.

"Il Trovatore" will be repeated on Friday, and on Saturday afternoon "Linda" will be again given.

The great tenor, ROGER, has been engaged for this establishment. In MEYERBEER's music he has no equal, and cannot fail to be an immense attraction. Salary $5,000 per month.

Concerts.

The MOLLENHAUER Brothers give their grand concert in Brooklyn to-night, and will be assisted by a host of talent. Go.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—Mlle. RACHEL appeared last night, in CORNEILLE's tragedy of "Polyeucte," to a fine house. Our notice of the performance is crowded out.

Death of Mrs. Mills of the Marquesas Islands.

The Following letter, which was received yesterday at the rooms of the American Missionary Association, gives a painfully interesting account of the unexpected death of Mrs. ROBERT MILLS, a native of the Marquesas Islands, who was recently in this Country and who died while on her way to her native island with her husband and infant son:

SAN FRANCISCO, Tuesday, Sept. 4, 1855.

DEAR SIR: We are here at last, but we are here to weep. One of our number has left us. Mrs. MILLS is no more. She died yesterday, Sept. 3, at 4 o'clock. You know how much she traveled and visited and was excited before she left New-York. We can see now that all through the voyage she has been running down, though we little thought of it till we nearly reached this place. She had occasional ill turns on the Atlantic side. It rained very hard when we crossed the Isthmus, and she got wet. Then we had a dreadful time in getting on board the boat at Panama. No opportunity to get a mouthful to eat from the time we left Aspinwall in the morning till we got on board after 9 o'clock at night. She took cold and got very much fatigued, but still kept about. We had very hot weather for a week or more on this side; but when we passed Cape St. Lucas we experienced a very great and sudden change of weather. It was as cold as November all the rest of the day.

It was Sabbath day, August 26, that we passed the Cape; and in the evening there were religious services on deck, which Mrs. MILLS attended. She took more cold, but kept about till Tuesday evening. Wednesday she did not get up at all. Towards evening Mr. MILLS and I took her out of her berth, and while we were doing this she was seized with an epileptic fit. Thursday she was a little better, but Friday she was worse, and was threatened with fits all day. Saturday we got into port. She was very low, and we procured a litter and had her carried to a hotel, for we dared not wait to look up a private house.

A Physician was called, as Dr. COXHEAD (one of the Missionaries) was very unwell, and felt unable to treat the case; but all seemed to avail nothing. She had a violent inflammation on her brain and lungs, and nothing could allay it. She did not have her reason all the time, and toward the last she was almost senseless, and seemed to breathe with great difficulty. But at last she breathed more quietly and died very easily. She maintained her kind, obliging disposition to the last.

So our human prop is taken away, and we are lonely, afflicted strangers in a strange land. "Cast down, but not destroyed." We have had her body put into alcohol, in a lead coffin, and are going to take it with us to the Islands. It will cost but little more to do it than to bury her here, and it will be a great gratification to her friends. It may also promote the interests of the Mission. The funeral services were attended to-day, in the First Congregational Church.

We were very cordially received by the Christian people of this city, and they sympathize deeply with us in our affliction. Mr. MILLS feels his loss very keenly. The little boy is with a wet nurse, and is doing well.

The story that the French have possession of all the Marquesas Islands, is not correct. I saw a man to-day, who was there thirteen months since. They were on Nukahiva, but not on the others.

Your servant in Christ,

E. M. SEYMOUR.

Trial of a Negress for the Murder of her Paramour.

MARY ANNE LAMBERT, a mulatto woman, was put on trial yesterday, before Judge ROOSEVELT, of the Court of Oyer and Terminer, for the murder of OSCAR SNOWDEN, on the 1st of last July, at No. 67 Mott-street. The circumstances, as appeared in evidence, were, that prisoner and deceased, although not married, had been living together as man and wife for about a year. She was a seamstress from Philadelphia, and he followed the business of whitewashing in New-York. Both were addicted to a free indulgence in ardent spirits, and were frequently seen drunk. Jealousy, on the part, led to the quarrel which ended fatally.

It was urged for the prisoner that she committed the act in self-defence and this was sustained by the evidence of the son of deceased, who detailed the origin of the quarrel, and proved that his father had struck prisoner with a hatchet before she stabbed him with the knife in the breast and inflicted the fatal wound. Deceased wanted to leave the house on the night of the quarrel; prisoner tried to prevent him and that led to the encounter.

The Court charged the Jury that if the prisoner were guilty of any of the subdivisions of the crime of murder, as defined in the Revised statutes, it was that of manslaughter in the third degree. If the Jury should believe that the homicide was committed in self-defence, the prisoner was entitled to an acquittal at their hands.

The Jury retired and at a late hour had not agreed on a verdict.

NEW-YORK, June 11, 1865.

I have made a chemical examination of "RHODES' FEVER AND AGUE CURE," or "ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA," and have tested it for Arsenic, Mercury, Quinine and Strychnine, but have not found a particle of either in it; nor have I found any substance in the composition that would prove injurious to the constitution.

MAXWELL, Delaware Co., Ohio, Aug. 19, 1865.

MR. J. A. RHODES—Dear Sir:—Your medicine has met with the most favorable success in this neighborhood. I have eleven doses in bottles left. I gave it to them at first, "if no good no pay," although I was not authorized by you to do so; but I took the responsibility on myself. But not a bottle has come back, and as I am almost out of the article, I wish you would forward me one gross of the bottles, if you can get it by ex. and I will be punctual in payment. I believe Green's Fever and Ague Cure, which I have received, did which please send me a receipt. Ship the Cure to me as soon as you can—there never has been so much Chills and Fever since I lived in the State, as at present.

Yours, &c., RICHARD MARTIN, P. M.

CONSTANTINE, Mich., Sept. 24, 1865.

JAMES A. RHODES, Esq.—Dear Sir:—I have just sent an order to AMES & HALLIDAY for another half gross of your Fever and Ague Cure. It has sold like hot cakes, and I have only two bottles on hand. One reason it has sold so because when I have heard of a case of Ague or Chill Fever, I have sent a bottle and told them to try it, and if it did not help them, they were not obliged to pay for it, and they were all satisfied. I had one case of Chill Fever where it ran four days, but the man came to see me on the sixth day well satisfied. Truly, yours,

JOHN P. GLADDING.

MOLINE, Ill., Sept. 24, 1865.

MR. JAMES A. RHODES—Dear Sir:—The box of "Ague Cure" you sent us has all been sold, and created a large demand for more; to meet which we have ordered from your general agent at Chicago, J. D. Yerrington. Its sales will only be equaled by the number of Fever and Ague cases. Shaking these cases may be few, yet have a bottle of the Cure with every case, we remain

I. O. O. F.—In another column of to-day's paper will be found an advertisement for "Rhodes' Fever and Ague Cure." We are not in the habit of puffing medicines, but deem it our duty, for the benefit of the afflicted, that WILLIAM M. Hoyt, merchant, Sharpsburg, who has it for sale, informs us that he has sold several dozen bottles, and in every case it has effected a cure. This proves the medicine to be good, and we take pleasure in bringing it before the notice of the public.—Bath Press, Steuben'g, N.Y., Sept. 6.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

BEHMER'S REVIEWS.

THE OPINIONS AND OBSERVATIONS OF JOHN WESLEY, SHIPPS, AND OF RICHARD CUTTLE, MARINER, may be found in a delightful volume of Jean Ingelow's, just published, entitled

A BASKET OF CHIPS.

One Thin volume of not page. Illustrated by McLenan. Price $1 25. BUNCE & BROTHER, Publishers, No. 128 Nassau-street, New-York.

THE GREAT PROTESTANT WORK, THE ACTS AND MONUMENTS OF THE CHURCH, CONTAINING THE HISTORY AND SUFFERINGS OF THE MARTYRS, BY JOHN FOXE.

Complete in one volume, royal 8vo., 1,100 pages, 50 illustrations (which are taken from that of 1641, in three volumes, and are not in any other edition). The text is the same as the original and which have been carefully revised through the stereotyped edition, are retained. All grave and indecent descriptions are carefully expunged; all the Greek and Latin quotations are translated, and the spelling modernized; and nothing is retained unfit for general reading, so that it is essentially a family work.

The whole has been carefully edited by Rev. M. HOBART SEYMOUR, author of "Morning with the Jesuits," and other popular works.

This is the first time that this great work—this perfect encyclopedia of martyrdom—has been presented complete to the American public. Ministers of all evangelical denominations have united in the recommendation of it. The information of some of them are appended.

From Rev. Dr. Murray, author of the celebrated "Kirwan Letters."

BELLEFONTAINE, Ohio, May 30, 1865.

Save the circulation of the Bible, I know of no better way to resist the aggressions of Popery than to make the world acquainted with its cruel heart, as that heart is revealed in its bloody history. And of all the books that have been written on that side of its history, the "Acts and Monuments" of master John Foxe stands predominent. Its a book of startling interest from cover to cover, and it is as historically true as it is painfully exciting.

From Dr. Tyng.

It is a treasury of true and triumphant history.

From Dr. Sprague.

Such a record of the bloody triumphs of Romanism, when it was suffered to have its own way, will do more to show its true spirit, and to wake up slumbering Protestants of this generation to a sense of their danger, than the most elaborate discussions of the greatest and most accomplished writers.

From Dr. Kane.

No work is better adapted to expose "the mystery of iniquity."

From Prof. Mattison.

I cannot too strongly recommend it to the patronage of the Christian public.

From Dr. Williams.

The recent Papal aggressions developed a latent fread and dislike of Rome in the national mind of England, such as astonished both the friends and foes of the Papacy. No human book has done so much to work these feelings into the very fiber of the English character, as has been effected by the "Acts and Monuments" of the excellent Martyrologist.

From Rev. John Angel James.

Your new and cheap edition of Foxe's original book, needs no recommendation of mine; it deserves additional value on account of the present fears and hopes of the Papacy. Every Protestant ought to know and value this affecting and dreadful illustration of the evils of Popery; if, however, my recommendation be of any worth, I most cordially give it.

From Rev. W. M. Hetherington, D.D.

At a time like the present, when the Papal system is again threatening to resume its aggressive movements, it must be of great importance that its real character should be known. That character, in all its treachery, falsehood and persecution, is nowhere better delineated than in the graphic pages of the memorable Martyrologist.

From an article in the Independent by Rev. J. P. Thompson.

Living in times of trial himself, an object of persecution, personally acquainted with the character and the suffering of many martyrs of the period of the Reformation, and having access to numerous original documents and narratives connected with that age of martyrdom, he compiled a volume which, though not written with the care and method of the finished historian, and somewhat overcharged with tales of horror, is yet a standard book of reference in the department of Church history, and a testimony against the Papacy. Few books in our language evince such patient research, and such indefatigable industry.

WHICH IS THE HEROINE, CORA OR FLORA? And who is the proud Livingston whose character is depicted in such masterly style in the pages of that new and charming book,

ISORA'S CHILD.

An elegant 12mo volume. Price $1 25.

Says the Boston Traveller:

We confess to having rested sufficiently far to get quite interested in the narrative, and to be almost as much indebted to the author for the pleasure, the literary ability of the unknown author. It is a love tale, and of the most entrancing kind.

Says the Albany Evening Journal:

Its incidents are novel, and effectively managed; and its style possesses both correct vigor and depth of pathos, relieved by occasional flashes of a pleasing and genial humor. Among the crowd of trashy publications now issued from the press, a work as true to nature and as elevated and just in its conceptions of the purposes of life as this is, is all the more welcome because it is so rare. We have no doubt it will be as popular as it is interesting.

Says the Cincinnati Daily Sun:

We have seldom perused a work of fiction that gave us more real pleasure than this one. We took from first to last page it engrossed the attention, and carried your sympathies along with the fortunes of the heroine. The descriptive powers of the unknown authoress are of the loftiest order, and cannot fail of placing her in the first ranks of authorship.

NEW SYSTEM OF TEACHING FRENCH.

THE WHOLE FRENCH LANGUAGE.

BY T. ROBERTSON.

617 pp. 12mo. $1 25. Key to do., 75 cents.

Extract from Harper's Magazine.

The author of this system is Professor ROBERTSON, a celebrated teacher in Paris; who has obtained a European reputation by the excellence of his method and the success of his instructions. It claims to combine the most valuable features in the systems of MANESCA, OLLENDORFF, HAMILTON, and the older grammatical authorities, while it is free from the defects which diminish the practical utility of those methods.

For the convenience of those who would wish to examine this celebrated system, the publishers have printed extra copies of the FIRST and LAST LESSON, (and all the lessons are arranged essentially on the same plan,) for gratuitous distribution to those who may apply for it; and to Professors of Languages who may prefer the entire work for examination, copies will be sent by mail, free of expense, on the receipt of $1, for the System, or $1 50 for the System and Key.

BUILDING MATERIALS.

ROOFING SLATE.

PRICES GREATLY REDUCED!—WHY NOT USE IT?—IT IS CHEAPER, HANDSOMER, MORE DURABLE, MORE FIRE-PROOF THAN METAL, and can be as readily supplied and laid on.
THE EAGLE SLATE COMPANY,
of Castleton, Vermont,
INVITE THE ATTENTION OF BUILDERS, ARCHITECTS, and the public generally, to their GREEN AND PURPLE ROOFING SLATE, which, being superior to any hitherto quarried in DURABILITY OF COLOR, as FULLY EQUAL TO THE WELSH. It can also be transported cheaply to any of the STATES, CANADA, OR THE WEST INDIES.
The Company, while calling the attention of the public to the article produced by them, would remark of SLATE FOR ROOFING PURPOSES in general, that the cheapness with which it is produced and laid on, its great protection against fire and the heat of the Summer, with the fact that it never requires painting—lasting a life-time without repairs—renders it SUPERIOR TO ANY OTHER ROOFING MATERIAL. They therefore invite all Committees for the erection of public institutions, and persons building first-class residences in town or country, to investigate the subject.
They refer to the following experienced slaters for information as to the quality of the article manufactured by them, viz.:
JOHN BRODIE, No. 67 Washington-st., New-York.
EDWARD CROMMELIN, No. 436 Washington-st., New-York.
F. & J. DUGAN, No. 426 Broome-st., New-York.
THOMAS LEWIS, No. 48 Rose-st., New-York.
Communications addressed to J. W. KISSAM, Castleton, Vt., or to G. FURMAN, Jr., at the depot of the Company, No. 309 West 18th-st., New-York, will meet prompt attention.

DR. MAGNIN'S LUCINA CORDIAL, OR ELIXIR OF LOVE.—This delightful and positive invigorant of the human system, is fast superseding all other remedies; in fact, when its virtues become fully known it will be the only remedy in use. Its action on the nervous system and reproductive organs is most extraordinary, allaying all over excitement and infusing into the nervous organization that degree of tension which is requisite to give the human system the enjoyment of its full powers, both mentally and physically. As an appetizer it is equally remarkable; assimilating with the gastric juices of the stomach, it assists them in more readily dissolving all nutricious substances, and converting them into pure and wholesome blood; thus the digestion is improved and the whole framework of man moves on in a more vigorous and harmonious manner thereby. IMPORTANT MEDICAL NOTICE.—The subscriber, who is about retiring from active practice, has prepared in printed form his valuable prescriptions, recipes, &c., adapted to private diseases, with all necessary advice, by which every person can cure himself immediately on discovery, without the dangerous delay usually experienced where the medical man through ignorance or with a desire to increase his fee, permits the complaint to remain until the patient's health is seriously jeopardized. Physicians are assured that these formulas are derived from the most successful treatment of these two diseases; to patients, especially those at a distance, they are invaluable. Price $1 each, and sent, enclosed in a letter, as directed. Address Dr. DEVERE, Box No. 2 650, Post-Office, formerly a surgeon in the Paris Hospitals.

Dr. WATSON desires to state that, as many have been deceived by the promises of certain charlatans, and been injured by drugs, patients are respectfully invited to call in the first place, as there is no charge for consultations. The State Temperance Convention at Utica.

UTICA, Wednesday, Oct. 3—2 P. M.

The State Temperance Convention met at Mechanics' Hall at 1 o'clock to-day.

Mr. RICHARDSON, Chairman of the State Committee, called the Convention to order, and, on his motion, CHARLES BUTLER of Poughkeepsie was appointed temporary Chairman, and M. S. BARNUM, of Ithica, and L. INGALLS, of Watertown, Secretaries. Nearly 100 delegates presented credentials and took seats. A Committee of One from each Judicial District was appointed to select permanent officers, when the Convention adjourned until 3½ o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

On the reassembling of the Convention this afternoon, the Committee on Permanent Organization reported through their Chairman, Mr. WILLIAMS, the following: For President, Hon. JOHN SAVAGE, of Oneida; Vice Presidents, C. C. Leigh, Samuel Beyer, General Joseph T. Smith, Ellis Chisbie, Daniel H. Marsh, George D. Beers, Leban Hackins, and Ambel Boeville; Secretaries, George W. Bungay, of Herkimer; John B. Wells, of Kings, and N. Seymour, of Livingston.

The report was unanimously adopted.

Judge SAVAGE, on taking the Chair, briefly addressed the Convention.

After the address, Mr. LEIGH stated that he had received a communication from His Excellency, Gov. CLARK, transmitting to this Convention an address to the citizens of New-York, from the United Kingdom Temperance Alliance of Great Britain.

After the reading of this address, Mr. LEIGH moved that a Committee of three be appointed by the Chair to answer it. Carried.

The Chair appointed C. C. LEIGH, C. J. WARREN, and Rev. JOHN MARSH, as the Committee for that purpose.

Rev. Dr. MARSH reported in part from the Committee on Business. Report accepted.

The Committee on Resolutions presented the following preamble and resolutions which were adopted:

Whereas, A political Convention held at Syracuse in this State on the 22d of August last, passed the following:

Resolved, That we regard the Prohibitory Liquor act passed by the Legislature of this State at its late session, as not only a violation of the Constitution, but also as subversive of personal liberty and the rights of private property, and that its repeal is, in our opinion, imperatively demanded.

And whereas, Another Convention, consisting of a portion of the same party, at a Convention held on the 20th of August last, passed a resolution as follows:

Resolved, That the efforts and growing inclination of the Whig party to extend legislation beyond the limits authorized by the Constitution, have proved detrimental to the best interests of the State. It is the duty of the Legislature not less than of the Judiciary, to protect the rights of the citizens. A reckless disregard of those rights has led the Whig party of this State, under the guise of suppressing intemperance and crime, to trench upon private property and personal liberty against the plainest guarantees of the Constitution. This law should be repealed and legislation should not supersede moral discipline.

And whereas, A Convention calling itself American, held at Auburn, on the 25th of September last, did not, so far as is known, pass any resolutions whatever upon the subject of Prohibition, thereby clearly ignoring that issue, and whereas a Convention known as Republican, held at Syracuse on the 26th and 27th days of September, as follows:

Resolved, That firmly believing the great principle of prohibition is right, we will resist the attempts now being made to prevent a trial of the practical workings thereof in the State.

And whereas, The said Republican Convention nominated a ticket composed in good part of avowed and decided Temperance men and friends of Prohibition; and whereas, it is of the highest importance that all officers whose duties are connected with the Prohibitory Laws, either in a legislative or executive capacity, should receive the united support of the friends of Prohibition at the coming election. Therefore,

Resolved, That in view of the favorable action of the Republican Convention, and of the course pursued by the other Conventions, it is the opinion of this Convention that the interests of Temperance will be best subserved by a cordial support of the Republican nominees, so far as they are found to be prohibitionists.

Resolved, That we adopt as our own the nominees of the Republican Convention for Judges of the Court of Appeals and Attorney General, and that we make no further nominations because, first, this Convention was called for the specific purpose of nominating candidates for those offices only, and, second, because these offices are the only ones directly concerned with the enforcement of the prohibitory principle.

There was considerable discussion upon the resolutions before they were adopted.

Several other resolutions were presented of minor importance, but which gave use to a long debate.

The Temperance men throughout the State were desired to select such candidates from other tickets, besides those designated by this Convention, as may best suit their individual preferences.

Speeches were then made by Messrs. STEBBINS, LEIGH, MARSH, CRAMPTON, and others, when the Convention (about 10 P. M.) adjourned, with hearty cheers for the nominations.

Massachusetts Know-Nothing State Convention—Nomination of Gov. Gardner for Re-election—Great Enthusiasm.

BOSTON, Wednesday, Oct. 3.

The Native American State Convention met at the Tremont Temple, this forenoon. It is a large and enthusiastic gathering from all sections of the State. Hon. E. C. BAKER, of Medford, is President.

The following was the result of the ballot for Governor: whole number of votes cast, 820—of which HENRY J. GARDNER received 812, the remaining 8 being scattered. The announcement of the vote was received with great applause.

The Convention nominated by a nearly unanimous vote Hon. HENRY W. BENCHLEY, the President of the last State Senate for Lieutenant Governor; FRANCIS WITT, of Ware, for Secretary of State; H. FERNALD, of Newburyport, for Treasurer; JOSEPH DUNOLEY, of Fall River, for Auditor, and A. H. NELSON, of Woburn, for Attorney General.

The platform adopted at Springfield was reaffirmed as the platform of the party.

A Committee who had been sent for Governor GARDNER returned in his company, and he addressed the Convention at some length, accepting the nomination, defining his position, and defending himself from the attacks which had been made upon him.

Mr. GARDNER was received with tumultuous and long continued applause.

Mr. BENCHLEY accepted the nomination for Lieutenant Governor in a brief speech, and the Convention soon after dissolved.

The State Fair.

ELMIRA, Wednesday, Oct. 2.

It commenced raining here on Tuesday night about sundown and continued almost without intermission until after dark this evening. Still, at an early hour this morning, the crowd which has been steadily accumulating until the present time, commenced thronging to the Fair, and notwithstanding the unfavorable weather, it is estimated that 10,000 people visited the Grounds. The progress of the Exhibition has been greatly checked by the storm, and it is feared it has endangered its success. The prospects of fair weather, to-morrow, are more encouraging, but far from satisfactory.

The trains from all points came crowded with passengers. All the hotels are densely packed, and private and boarding-houses are full. Thousands who have been unable to obtain lodgings have left for their homes, and hundreds of others are seeking lodgings in the adjoining towns. To-morrow, should the weather be clear, it is estimated by good judges that the grounds will be visited by at least 30,000 people.

Governor BIGLER and Secretary CURTIN of Pennsylvania, and quite a number of other noted individuals from various parts of the country are here.

This is the first meeting of the Stockholders that has been held since the uniting of the Charles River Road with that of the Air Line. The report of the Treasurer showed a subscription of $303,300, and an expenditure of about $[illegible]. A very energetic Board of Directors was elected, and there is a fair promise of some progress being made in the construction of the road.

SHANNON [illegible] the Pro-Slavery [illegible] county [illegible] polls. No Free-Soilers [illegible] voting.

Gov. REEDER was not killed, as before reported.

Death of an Ex-Member of Assembly.

Mr. GEORGE A. SEARING, who occupied a seat in the State Legislature last Winter—having also served a previous term—died at his residence on Monday night of consumption. He represented the Second Assembly District of Brooklyn. Mr. S. was seriously ill all last Winter, but he still attended to his duties with fidelity. He was a gentleman of amiable and excellent character, of good abilities, and was universally esteemed.

Suicide by Hanging.

Mrs. MARY POLHAMOS, residing at No. 107 King-street, yesterday, while laboring under a fit of temporary insanity, committed suicide by hanging herself to a nail in the ceiling of her bedroom. An inquest was held by Coroner HILTON, when a verdict as above was returned.

☞ The Commissioners of Emigration did nothing of importance at their meeting yesterday. They did talk over Gov. DRAPER's resolution, reflecting upon them as insolvent and up to their ears in debt, but referred to a Committee a resolution of Commissioner PURDY—which asserted that the Governor's "claim is not founded upon a fair and legal construction of the law, and is calculated to mislead the public;" and "proposed to the Board of Governors that this matter be referred to arbitrators, selected in the usual manner, or be determined by a judicial tribunal in an amicable suit."

☞ One point of the North-Western Dispensary Report, read at the Annual Meeting, last night, is worthy of instant attention. It relates to the causes of disease generated in the frail shanties, the joint tenement of human beings and swine or cattle, permitted to be erected indiscriminately upon vacant lots, and generally in damp, miasmatic places. The Committee correctly observe: "It is a vain and useless expenditure to feed these people with quinine." The cause of such disease is easy of prevention, and the City should prevent it.

☞ The new badge designated by the Legislature to be worn by the firemen of this City while on duty, was distributed at Firemen's Hall last evening by the Chief Engineer, to the members of Companies Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7. The distribution will be continued nightly, at the same place, until the whole Department is furnished.

☞ Of bondable passengers 3,376, and of those not liable to bond 85 have arrived in 16 vessels to the Commissioners of Emigration, between the 26th of September and the 2d of October. The whole amount of their cash means added to the money capital of this country during the past eight days, has been no less than $112,661 15.

☞ Every person who has time and feels like it, step down at once to Ward's Island and see and smell what a filthy and wasteful place it is. We are particularly anxious that it be seen now, for unless the Commissioners have missed their figure entirely, a reform is to set in at once, and a new order will reign henceforth. Capt. PILLSBURY, this week, has taken possession.

☞ The Coroners investigated, yesterday, the cases of the deaths of ELISHA FAXON, of Boston, who fell through a hatchway, and of an unknown man found floating, probably ten days dead, in the river.

☞ There was a very large attendance at the Academy of Medicine last night, to hear the paper of DR. STONE, of New-Orleans, on Yellow Fever. It was exceedingly interesting and well received.

☞ GIDEON VERLANDER, being full of delirium tremens, hung himself yesterday by a nail in the wall. He was cut down and saved.

☞ THEODORE DAFFRIEH has been recommitted to await the action of the Grand Jury, on the charge of homicide.

☞ WILLIAM HAYDEN, a young man, was arrested by Policeman Ross, charged with having seduced one BRIDGET O'NEIL, under promise of marriage.

☞ Much testimony was taken yesterday as to the use of steam on the Eleventh-avenue by the Councilmen's Committee on Railroads. More to come.

☞ The steamship Pacific, Captain NYE, made her last outward passage to Liverpool in nine days, twenty-one and a quarter hours.

☞ There were fifty-two admissions into the Jews' Hospital during the last quarter. Of the inmates but four died.

☞ There is but little alteration in the retail prices of farm produce at our City markets this week.

☞ The Board of Education yesterday transacted a little routine business—nothing more.

☞ There were 912 patients cared for by the Northern Dispensary last month.

☞ Look out for drugged liquor. Another man robbed yesterday in that way.

☞ Hose Cart No. 3 ran over a little girl, ELLEN CONNELLY, yesterday.

Thirteenth Ward Election Riots.

Several persons engaged in the election riot at ONDERDONK's House, in Grand-street, Tuesday night, were up before Justice BRENNAN, at the Essex Police Court, yesterday, to answer a charge of riot and assault and battery. Great excitement was the consequence. The examination was postponed to this day, the parties being continued on bail. SAMUEL McDONNELL, the man who was injured, is expected soon to recover.

Political Rowdies.

THOMAS H. FERRIS, of the Essex House, corner Grand and Essex streets, with PATRICK McCORMICK and other politicians, met yesterday at a porter-house in Washington-street, when they got into an altercation which ended in blows, in the course of which some party went behind FERRIS and struck him on the head with a champagne bottle, seriously cutting him. He was conveyed to his residence at once. We understand that no arrests were made in this affair.

LONG ISLAND.

☞ A contractor proposes to remove all night soil, garbage, &c., from the city of Brooklyn, without charge, on condition that he has the exclusive privilege for ten years; and agrees to convey all such articles more than 10 miles from the city—the city to furnish wharves from which it can be shipped. The Common Council have the proposition under consideration, and are also advertised for further proposals.

The Pseudo-"Ethics, Philosophy, Uses and Results of Medicated Inhalation" Unmasked.

LETTER NO. 19.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

I come now to expose the fallacy of the statements and the meanness of the motives which characterize the articles under consideration.

Were it necessary for me to give any further apologies for entering upon this defence of Inhalation, I might urge that I am only acting in self-defence, assailed as I am by the scurrility so bountifully put forth. My identity as the object of this unprincipled attack is sufficiently established by the frequent use of the term quoted, the "Specialist," this being the title of my monthly journal, in which the whole subject of Inhalation, its history, practice and results, are fully and fairly discussed.

The false pretence of the motive assigned for writing on the subject of Inhalation, is rendered apparent by a few facts. Since my first advocacy of it in this country, in 1851, I have claimed for this practice the confidence of the public and the profession, not alone because of the successful results attained by it in my own practice, but on the ground of the high professional character of many of its European advocates. In the Spring of 1852, I procured a review of Dr. MADDOCK's book on Inhalation in several newspapers, among which may be mentioned the Albany Evening Journal and the Albany Knickerbocker, the latter of which papers copied the entire preface. During the Summer of 1853, I advertised the preparation of an American Edition of Sir CHARLES SCUDAMORE's work, with an introduction, notes and an appendix by myself, which I was prevented from completing by the loss of a trunk containing the manuscript. In the Winter of 1853-4, I published a "Practical Treatise on Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, with their treatment by Inhalation,"—in the preface to the first edition of which, I gave the names of Sir CHARLES SCUDAMORE and Dr. MADDOCK, as among the ablest advocates of this practice. In my first letter on Inhalation, published in the Autumn of 1854, in all the principal papers of this City, the following passage appears:

"It is not claimed that Inhalation is entirely a new practice. It was brought under the notice of the profession, and practiced with very great success, by Sir CHARLES SCUDAMORE, a distinguished English physician; and about the same time by Dr. MURRAY, of Dublin, and many others. Of late years, as experience suggested new remedies for Inhalation, defined correctly the operation of those previously known, and improved the rude and imperfect apparatus employed, its success has been such as to establish beyond the possibility of cavil, that confirmed and undoubted Consumption may be cured even under desperate circumstances."

In the seventh letter of my series, published in the TIMES, Herald, Tribune, Home Journal, Mirror and other papers of this City, the reader will find what my claim stated, as follows:

"I have devoted the experience of years, to erect the facts on which Inhalation is based, into a system of practice, applicable to every form of the melancholy and complicated maladies which have their seat in the organs of respiration. And I have now the high satisfaction of seeing my labors rewarded by the success which has already given publicity to my practice, and in the public estimation, which is spreading its fame not only throughout the United States, but the world.

Inhalation gives us access to the air passages and cells of the lungs, for the application of medicine. But it will at once be seen, that the mere act of inhaling is in itself no remedy. The remedy lies in the medicines which the physician prescribes; while the kind of medicine—the strength and form of administration—must be regulated by his experience and professional knowledge."

In letter No. 16 of this series I again referred to the subject, and pointed out the manner in which inhalation was previously practised in this country, and by some in this City. Here are my remarks:

"After having spent years in laborious study and investigation, to reduce the experience on which Inhalation is based to order, I introduced it into the United States in the Spring of 1851, as a rational and systematic practice in pulmonary diseases. Prior to that time the attention of the profession in this country had been but imperfectly directed to the subject. Their experience consisted chiefly in burning rosin and tar on a heated shovel, or inhaling iodine from a teapot! One physician of this City, prominently identified with the treatment of throat and lung diseases, used to direct his patients to rub iodine on the chest on retiring to bed, and then to draw the blankets over the head, that the iodine, rendered volatile by the warmth of the body, might be inhaled—thereby compelling the poor sufferer to breathe over and over, not only the poison thrown off from the lungs, but the offensive exhalations of the body."

And in my last letter of this series, (No. 18,) I distinctly denounced those pretenders of new systems of Inhalation. I observed:

"I might instance as another class the tribe of imitators who follow me with their pretended new systems and improvements on Inhalation. Whatever appeals strongly to the good sense of mankind also appeals with equal force to the avarice of the impostor. An honorable mind scorns to steal merit as an honest one to steal gold—but the mean in spirit follow our footsteps, borrow our language, our ideas and our reputation."

Again, in the first number of the Specialist, published three weeks before the appearance of the first of these letters, the false pretence of which I am now unmasking, I gave no less than sixty distinguished authorities who had written on the subject, and disclaimed priority in the following paragraph:

"To inhale is as natural as to swallow, and has probably occurred to the mind of every physician a thousand times. To claim a "new system of inhaling" is as absurd as it would be to claim the discovery of a new system of breathing, or a new passage to the stomach. But it is one thing to know that we can inhale medicines, and another to know what medicines we ought, and in what proportion we should inhale them to cure disease."

These he had read, for he alludes to the Specialist, and copies these very authorities. And yet, in the face of all this evidence, he has the impudence to assign as his motive for writing against inhalation that we had advanced "bold and confident claims to novelty." I cannot conceive a bolder piece of mendacious effrontery than this, the very purpose of which was to disguise the dishonorable and mercenary motive he had in view.

To-morrow I will expose his false quotations and gross misrepresentations. Your obedient servant,

R. HUNTER, M. D.,

Physician for Diseases of the Lungs.

Poughkeepsie Collegiate School.

The semi-annual examination of this Institution took place on the 27th and 28th ult. From the time of its establishment, nineteen years since, these have uniformly been regarded as occasions of special interest. The beautiful eminence on which it stands, at all times so attractive, and visited and admired by strangers for its unequaled prospect, draws to it the numbers influenced by a desire to witness the results of youthful training within its walls. Under the long continued and efficient superintendence of its esteemed proprietor, C. BARTLETT, Esq., and with the assistance of the able corps of instructors which he has ever had the good fortune to gather around him, the Poughkeepsie Collegiate School has acquired a reputation not inferior to that possessed in another grade of Seminaries by our best Colleges.

Familiar with the history of this Institution from its foundation, the writer of this article feels assured from what he witnessed at this examination, that the same system and the same thoroughness and accuracy of instruction are maintained in its several departments which have secured and preserved its enviable reputation hitherto. The good order and manly bearing of the pupils generally, and the just views and elevated tone of moral sentiment which pervaded the compositions read and speeches delivered, indicated also that there is no abatement of that careful discipline and healthful moral influence, which, added to full and thorough instruction, have given such prominence to the School on College Hill, and rendered it an object of just pride to the citizens of Poughkeepsie.

SPECTATOR.

The Winter Term of the Poughkeepsie Collegiate School will commence on the first Wednesday in November. Catalogues which contain terms, &c. of the School, can be obtained of CHARLES BARTLETT, the proprietor.

MEDITATION.

Lines to the departed Henry Heth, of the 10th Infantry.

Thou, too, art gone to give an account, in simple words, of thy short life

Called to the other world of happiness and purity, thou wilt find a place more suited to thy kindly nature;

For, though a soldier's life had been thy destiny on earth, and nobly didst thou fill the rank of officer—

Yet, such a gentle spirit and a sympathetic feeling seemed rather to fit thee for a gentler sphere

A studious scholar at the noble Point thou didst give promise of a fair career; and oft, surrounded by thy young companions, didst beguile their leisure hours by some pleasing narrative

But at length the time arrived when class-mates separate, and each to his apportioned garrison goes forth;

Then, with a cheerful, manly courage, to the distant West thou journeyed on through dead of Winter—

Sent forth to drive the red man from his bloody war path. This thou didst, and bravely, too, likewise giving kind assistance unto weary emigrants

At length, however, in a hostile struggle, the "pale-face officer" is killed.

And like some beauteous, healthy plant, fresh in all the vigor of its youth, nipped in the bud by some unlooked for tempest,

Thou didst yield thy youthful frame to God.

And the white Heath sank to mother earth from whence it sprung

But shall thy class-mates leave thy bones to prairie-soil, to waste away like those of some lost traveler?

[Concluded in the next column.]

Rather. Let me not do thee wrong in saying that. Lay by a soldier's grave, in some strange land. When the companions of a departed friend thus would lay [illegible] to him in the wished, that a soldier's life be [illegible]. And stand as we ought, give pleasing hopes of meeting [illegible] thee. WEDNESDAY, Oct. 3—P. M.

The European Money and Market accounts and the private commercial correspondence by the steamer Pacific, from Liverpool September 22, were delivered early this forenoon. They are less favorable for Cotton prices, owing to the reports of our fine crop, which were reaching England. The decline is equal to a farthing the pound. The advices are also less decided as to the large wants of the United Kingdom in Grain and Flour. The harvest was nearly secured, and the late rise in Wheat in the London and Provincial markets is not very clearly accounted for from domestic causes. By the same mail, however, we have the official, and we presume pretty authentic declaration from the French Government, that the [illegible] has a deficient harvest to the extent of [illegible] lions English quarters of Grain, equal to sixteen millions of bushels, which will have to be made good from foreign sources, and the most liberal encouragement is held out to importers in France, and exporters in other countries to France, to supply the deficiency. No arbitrary or artificial means, as in 1853, are to be resorted to by Government to reduce the price of bread in Paris, or to force the sales of wheat at any given rate in the Provinces. Prices are a little lower in England by this packet, while the speculation in France continues active, and under the assurances of the Moniteur, Government organ, will now assume more confidence. The London Times confirms the announcement by the previous steamers that very large French orders have been sent to this country. The point now to be considered on this side is, whether or not they should be met by free sellers early in the season. The deficit in France is only one twelfth of the usual harvest, while in England the yield is a fair one, though not up to the heavy crop of 1854. There is understood to be a deficiency in Western Germany, but an available surplus on the Danube. The usual supplies from Odessa will again be cut off, as well by the War, as from a reduced yield in that part of Russia bordering on the Black Sea. The Money news is less discouraging from England. The Bank had lost $3,090,000 in Gold, but the managers adjourned their weekly conference on Thursday, Sept. 20, without further action on the rate of interest. Some discounts were had outside below the present Bank rate of 4½ ₱ cent. The arrivals of Specie were $1,604,600 from the West Indies, and $2,250,000 from Australia—most of the latter on the ship Frances Henly, just arrived. The shipments to the East were $2,430,000, mostly for Turkey, and $2,255,000 in Silver for British India. The condition of the Bank of France is less encouraging. The reserve is down to $57,750,000, against $82,000,000 on the May report. To check the speculations on the Bourse, and the incautious movements of the Credit Mobilier, the Bank has advanced the rate of interest on advances on Stocks to 5 ₱ cent., while commercial bills remain at 4 ₱ cent. The accounts are again nominal, or rather, in the present condition of our own market, unfavorable in relation to American Stocks, both from London and the Continent. There was little or nothing doing, and a further concession of 1@2 ₱ cent. on some of the Railroad Bonds had failed in London to attract buyers. In the German capitals, interest was too high on commercial bills to allow much attention to be paid to American Securities. Mr. SATTERTHWAITE writes that some transactions had taken place in Illinois Centrals at the reduced terms, 76 to 78, and in Erie Bonds of 1875 at 81 ₱ cent. The Bank of England had declared a half yearly dividend of 4 ₱ cent., leaving the surplus or "rest" £3,023,050. The profits of the six months were £587,032 on a capital of £14,553,000.

The Stock market this forenoon again opened under a depressed range of prices, and the sales were pretty free in State and Railroad Bonds, say $160,000, at a further decline from yesterday's rates of ¼@½ ₱ cent. The Road shares were also pressed, though chiefly on time contracts. As the day advanced, and it was found that Money was more readily come at, there was a partial recovery at the afternoon Board, when a line of $50,000 Virginias and 3,500 shares of Reading was taken at an advance of ½ ₱ cent. Erie also sold ½@¾ ₱ cent. better than the morning prices. We heard of a single private sale of New-York Central, at 93¾ cash, 50 shares. The bids on time were at 95 per cent. In regard to Money, there was an improved tone. One or two of the leading private Bankers lent freely. The steamer took out $250,000 in Gold bars. There was $95,000 in Gold coin received by express from Georgia. The Sub Treasury forwarded $30,000 to the Philadelphia Mint, and received $50,000 from Chicago. The duties paid in were $99,842; the regular disbursements $18,094. The balance at the close $7,086,262. The Hudson River Railroad receipts, for September, were $135,172, against $149,206 same month last year. The river competition between the different lines of steamboats during the month was unusually spirited, reducing fares so low as to affect the Railroad [illegible]

Mr. GIDEON DE ANGELIS, present Cashier of the People's Bank, was to-day made the successor of F. W. EDMONDS in the Mechanics' Bank. The Commercial Advertiser whose senior editor is a director of the Bank, says of Mr. DE ANGELIS:

"At the meeting of the Directors of the Mechanics' Bank, this morning, the resignation of Mr. [illegible] acting Cashier, was received and accepted. The Board then proceeded to an election for Cashier to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Mr. EDMONDS. It resulted in the choice of GIDEON DE ANGELIS, at present Cashier of the People's Bank, by unanimous vote. Mr. DE ANGELIS has received a thorough education as a bank officer. For several years he was Clerk and Teller of the Mechanics' Bank, and is consequently well acquainted with the details of its business. During his connection with the People's Bank, as its Cashier from its organization, he has given ample evidence of the possession of those higher qualifications essential to the successful management of the affairs of a bank, and has acquired the reputation of a most skillful financier.

We understand that the Directors passed resolutions complimentary to and expressive of their confidence in Mr. BURKE, and of Mr. COWDREY, whose resignation as Paying Teller preparatory to assumption of the Cashiership of the Importers' and Traders' Bank, has been already alluded to."
